Police uncovering facts to possible local murder

by Ron Bartlett
Staff Writer

EAST WINDSOR — Local police have been involved in an exhaustive, two-month long investigation of an alleged murder which they now believe may have never taken place.

After much careful searching, which at one point involved scuba divers who combed the bottom of the Millstone River, police have been unable to locate a corpse in the alleged killing.

But the possibility that a murder did occur has not been ruled out at this point, police say.

What police do have to work with is — number one — a victim. That victim is an aging, black migrant farm worker who was allegedly beaten with a baseball bat and left to drown in the Millstone River by his attackers.

THROUGH THEIR follow-up investigation, police have been able to locate that man in Florida. East Windsor detectives spoke to him by telephone on Monday.

And—number two — police say they have a woman informant who claims she was a witness to both a murder and the beating. Police say they are unsure whether she is lying or not.

The bizarre chain of events began on Nov. 18, when the East Windsor police received a phone call from Hamilton Township's police department.

Detectives there said they had questioned an informant who claimed to have information about a possible murder "in the general area," according to local police sources. The woman, who police say has been involved in crime herself, had been used in past during hold-up and robbery investigations.

The following day, the woman and a female juvenile were interviewed by East Windsor detectives Edward Skimmons and Peter Rossi. They gave the following account to the local police:

EARLIER in the fall, a man was lured from a local pub by a female. Outside the pub, the man was jumped and beaten by at least four attackers. Subduing him with a baseball bat, the man was thrown into a car.

According to the informant, another victim was already in the back seat of the car, unconscious and bleeding. The two men were robbed, and driven to a spot near Old Trenton Road.

The informant told police she witnessed the unconscious man being thrown into the water from a bridge, while the second man was held under water and again beaten with the bat, according to Det. Skimmons.

East Windsor police began their investigation, and a check with another local police department revealed some startling similarities to the informant's story.

On Oct. 19, Cranbury police had received an anonymous phone call from someone who said they had seen a black man wandering around "in a sort of dazed condition," offered Det. Skimmons. The call was received at about 12:30 a.m.

CRANBURY POLICE located the man, and brought him in. His name was Arthur Green, he was 54 years old, and he was employed as a migrant farm worker.

Mr. Green told police he had been attacked by two men and two women, but refused to sign a complaint or receive treatment for his injuries. He was transported back to Barclay Camp, a home base for many migrant workers.

But in later weeks, when East Windsor police attempted to locate the man at the camp to question him about the alleged murder, they found that he had disappeared.

Meanwhile, the female informant was questioned by local authorities. When placed on a stress analyzer, a lie detection machine, her story held its ground, said Det. Skimmons.

East Windsor police used scuba divers on four consecutive days early in December to probe the Millstone River, said Det. Skimmons, but no corpse was to be found. Police were able to locate a piece of material thought to be the shirt of Mr. Green, though.

LACKING a body to go on, police centered their investigation on locating the farm worker who had disappeared. Through extensive investigation, Mr. Green was located in Palatka, Fla., and he was brought in by police there at East Windsor's request.

Det. Skimmons said that during his telephone conversation with Mr. Green on Monday, the farm worker indicated that he was the only victim involved in the attack — casting doubt on the informant's claims that a murder had occurred.

Police say that missing persons lists have failed to provide any leads to a possible murder. Mr. Green will be questioned by Palatka police about the incident here, but may not be transported here for questioning, noted Det. Skimmons.

Det. Skimmons said doubts still exist about the alleged murder.

"We have not been able to substantiate a second victim," said the detective. "I feel now that it very well may be untrue."

WHAT POLICE do have, though, are

Johnson a 'compromise' mayor

by Ron Bartlett
Staff Writer

EAST WINDSOR — William Jay Johnson was elected to his ninth term as mayor, and Kay Gould was deposed from her deputy mayor and Planning Board posts during Township Council's stormy reorganizational meeting on Monday.

Mayor Johnson, who has now served at the township's helm for five consecutive years, was reelected by a slim 4-3 margin. It was the most serious challenge the mayor has faced for the seat in recent years — in 1979 and 1980, he won unanimous approval from council members.

And Mrs. Gould, the active councilwoman who was instrumental in the township's fight earlier this year against toxic waste bill S1300, was shunned twice by her peers amid claims that some sort of compromise "deal" had been struck between Mayor Johnson and the Republican council members.

Mrs. Gould lost her position of deputy mayor to Democrat David Schnitzer, also by a 4-3 total. Mr. Schnitzer had held that position for three straight years before losing to Mrs. Gould last Jan. 1.

THEN THE councilwoman was passed over as the council's representative to the planners, losing that post to political newcomer Debbie Baker, who was elected to the council in November.

In each of three critical voting areas — for mayor, deputy mayor, and the planning seat — Mayor Johnson, Mr. Schnitzer, and Republicans David Weinberg and Debbie Baker banded together to carry the majority.

Later, Mrs. Gould and other council observers indicated that they felt a "trade-off" had been engineered by Mayor Johnson and the Republicans.

"Apparently, what has happened is that the Republicans, Jay Johnson, and David Schnitzer got together and agreed on some sort of trade-off," suggested a disappointed Mrs. Gould. That "deal" she said, kept the mayor in office and cost her a planning board seat.

Mrs. Gould said she "can't say" if an agreement was made prior to the meeting, but added, "the way the meeting went, I suppose that's what happened."

ANOTHER SOURCE close to local government told the Herald that at least one council member had approached Mayor Johnson before the meeting and had suggested that his leadership was not what the township deserved. The source said council members had caucused before the election to "produce the result that they did."

Councilman David Weinberg denied that any such deal had occurred, noting that he had previously told Mayor Johnson that he would support him if nominated. The councilman said his only desire was to stay on the Health Board, which he said he had also verbalized.

"There was no 'I'll do this if you do that' taking place," claimed Mr. Weinberg.

Mr. Weinberg stressed that neither he nor Mrs. Baker had met with "any two members of council" prior to the reorganization meeting, which he noted could constitute some illegality.

"Of all the people on council — including myself — I think Jay Johnson is the fairest, and that's a most important quality in local government," added Mr. Weinberg. "In no way is this a knock on

Dump switch could cost Borough

by Michael Casserly
Staff Writer

HIGHTSTOWN — Concern was raised at Monday night's council meeting over a recent state directive ordering the borough to switch its dumping of solid wastes from its current site in Middlesex County to the Parklands Landfill in Burlington County. According to councilman Ron Prykanowski's calculations, the move could cost the borough an additional $10,000 in a single year.

The rates at the Edgeborough dump site now used by the town are $1.40 per cubic foot, as compared to $2.40 per cubic foot of waste at the Parklands landfill. The state's Board of Public Utilities monitors rates at the first site, but not the second, which is a private landfill area.

Councilman Prykanowski explained later that the switch, scheduled for Feb. 1 of this year, was prompted by a lack of landfill areas in Middlesex County and the rest of northern New Jersey, thus forcing municipalities to dump farther south. It has been estimated that Middlesex County has only five years of dumping potential left, due in part to heavy dumping from New York, he said.

UNDER THE state's solid waste disposal law, enacted several years ago, 22 dumping districts were set up in the state. The Mercer County Improvement Authority, which oversees this district's dumping, negotiated an agreement with Parklands requiring all municipalities in the county to use the landfill area.

The $10,000 increase in dumping costs foreseen by Mr. Prykanowski would especially hurt the borough because it would eat up a sizeable portion of this year's "cap," which he "guesstimated" at roughly $45,000.

To head off such a disastrous increase,

Mr. Prykanowski, as director of council's streets and sanitation committee, will be contacting Mercer County Freeholder President Barbara Sigmund, to request a one-year exemption from the state DEP directive. He is also talking with state Assemblymen Cliff Snedeker and Jim Saxton.

In other business, council approved an 8 percent interest rate on delinquent taxes for up to $1,500. The rate rises to 10 percent for additional back taxes owed, in accordance with state statute.

COUNCIL ALSO appointed Police Chief Lawrence Archer to a one-year term on the Planning Board.

Borough engineer Mac Lowenhaupt reported that state and county officials have recognized that Peddie and Etra Lakes should be treated as related problem areas to be cleaned up at about the same time. Etra Lake feeds Peddie Lake through Rocky Brook, he explained later, and should be cleaned up first.

The state's application for study monies for Etra Lake was submitted to the federal Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) on Dec. 1 of last year. The $100,000 application for a feasibility study on Peddie Lake will be submitted to the EPA this week, said John Brzozowski, lakes management coordinator of the Division of Water Resources of the state Department of Environmental Protection.

A decision on the Etra Lake application is expected from the DEP by mid-February, he said, and added that there is assurance that federal officials will agree that the two lakes should be cleaned up at the same time. "A lot depends on how

Cox: Cap can hurt Borough

Three sworn as town reorganizes

by Michael Casserly
Staff Writer

HIGHTSTOWN — Mayor Skip Cox sounded a note of warning in an otherwise congratulatory speech on the role of Hightstown council, during its annual reorganizational meeting New Year's Day.

"I am concerned that inflation and a 'capped' budget that do not take into consideration rising fixed costs can only come to affect the general well being of the people. The conditions of the streets in Hightstown are deplorable yet the aforementioned facts throttle our attempts at improvements. I am fearful that the quantity of service in several areas will have to be reduced to meet budget commitments," said Mayor Cox.

The brief statement concluded the meeting which drew about 50 people who witnessed three councilmen sworn in and Charles S. Stults step down upon completion of his three-year term.

Mac Sugg was chosen, unanimously, as council president at Thursday's noon meeting. Mr. Stults had served as the previous council president.

Cox was not one of total gloom however. The mayor was happy to remind "the noble and masochistic" Hightstonians who had risen to witness "the changing of the guard" that the council had achieved many of the goals referred to on his "wish list," which appeared in a 1979 Christmas letter.

Among the brightest moments of 1980 cited were: the opening of the Bank Street Bridge, the upgrading of the garbage department, the acquisition of the final deeds to Peddie Lake (making it possible to submit proposals for dredging to the state), the securing of a $242,000 small cities grant, and the return of Christmas lights to Main Street.

Following an invocation led by Reverend Dr. Robert L. Sullivan, Ron Prykanowski was sworn in by Mayor Cox for his third term on council. Next was Ken Eiker, beginning his first term. Mr. Eiker will head the fire, police, and civil defense committee, previously the responsibility of Mr. Prykanowski, who in turn will oversee the care of streets and sanitation. The post had been held by Mr. Stults.

The meeting also marked the return of Frank Caster, who will be filling in for Ramon Martinelli during the last year of his term. Mr. Martinelli was recently transferred by his company to Switzerland. Dr. Caster, who had previously served on council from 1970 to 1972, was the unanimous selection over three other candidates suggested to council by Mr. Prykanowski as president of the Hightstown Republican Club.

"I WENT out with Nixon and all the rest of the Republicans," said Dr. Caster at the public reception later.

The farewell to Councilman Stults was made by his successor to the streets and sanitation committee, Mr. Prykanowski, who mentioned that just after "Cappy" had been sworn in three years ago it had begun to snow heavily, "and he's been snowed under ever since."

Among the achievements of the outgoing councilman listed by Mr. Prykanowski were the acquisition of two new garbage trucks, the "breaking-in" of the new superintendent of public works (Larry Blake) and most recently the purchase of an asphalt recycler.

"The first pot hole we fill will have your name in it," he said to Mr. Stults, who graciously accepted an engraved mug and a framed resolution expressing appreciation for his service.

THE PICTURE painted by Mayor

Township budget relief is due

by Ron Bartlett
Staff Writer

EAST WINDSOR — Township officials have grown increasingly optimistic that the possibility of potential budget cuts and major job layoffs will never become reality.

Appellate division judges have postponed for two weeks the lawsuit filed by attorneys representing the township and Trenton in hopes that a remedy to the present "cap" law controversy can be found out of court.

Township attorney Michael Pane said the relief to a host of municipalities and their potential budget woes could come two ways — through legislation which is currently being drafted or through a settlement by the parties involved.

RECENTLY, state Attorney General John Degnan reinterpreted two areas of the "cap" law — the handling of municipal assets and urban aid — which local officials statewide have suggested could cripple their budgets.

The attorney general ruled that these two budget areas could not be included in the "cap" base, and the decision was later made retroactive through 1976, when the cap law was instituted. In East Windsor, the result would mean a loss of $562,831 and over 20 township jobs.

But this week, both Reagan Burkholder, township manager, and Mr. Pane suggested that the latest events taking place point in a favorable direction.

"It's obviously not just a postponement... we appear close to a remedy," Mr. Pane, told the council on Tuesday. "For whatever the impression is worth, they fully recognize what impact the decision would have if applied retroactively."

THE ATTORNEY said legislation to address the emergency is presently being prepared in the office of Gov. Brendan Byrne, and hopes are that it will be voted on Jan. 13. Meanwhile, he said, local officials have been encouraged to attempt a settlement on the retroactive clause in the decision.

Mr. Pane said the courts are reluctant to be forced into a ruling on the case for a variety of reasons. He said the judges would be forced to go very deeply into the nature of the "cap" law itself.

"They don't want to be overly active in an area where legislative or administrative relief is possible," he added.

Contacted on Tuesday, Mr. Burkholder said he has openly expressed optimism to township employees who could face layoffs.

"I suspect we'll see some legislative relief," speculated the manager. "Fortunately, I'm more and more convinced that the cuts were just an exercise."

HE ADDED that ideal legislation would render the "cap" law decision a "dead issue," rather than merely postponing it to a later date.

"I don't want to be faced with this next year," said Mr. Burkholder, who suggested this controversy and the recent delay in revenue sharing funds have created the most serious disruption in budget formation that he has ever experienced as an administrator in New Jersey.

The manager said his list of budget cuts was, indeed a "first glance" estimation, but he indicated that he would apply the same philosophy to the situation if the need arose. The areas of finance, public safety, and public works, would have to receive top priority, he suggested, while operations that were at the limit or overburdened would be the first to be cut.

"I'd rather do a few things right than everything badly," said Mr. Burkholder.

Only if the picture changes drastically now, he concluded, will the township be faced with those cuts.

PBA and East Windsor reach contract settlement

EAST WINDSOR — Following five months of negotiation, the local Police-mans Benevolent Association and the Township Council have come to a tentative agreement on a new, two-year contract.

Under the terms of the new pact, the police will receive an 8 percent pay increase this year, and an 8.5 percent increase for 1982, according to Det. James Hennon, president of PBA Local 191.

"We're satisfied with the percentage amounts," said Det. Hennon, who represents some 30 officers, including patrolmen and sergeants. "We knew we didn't lose—we broke even. And we did realize that the township might face some financial hardships."

Township Manager Reagan Burkholder said the council has scheduled the contract for adoption at its meeting next Tuesday. Township employees in other areas are also expected to receive an 8 percent pay increase this year.

Negotiations, said the manager, began on July 23, and about 10 sessions followed between the PBA and the township. The association's previous two-year contract expired on Dec. 31.

In other areas, the police also picked up another floating holiday, to be used as a personal day, said Det. Hennon. Police will now have 14 holidays throughout the year.

There will also be increases to the police for uniform maintenance, and the possibility of merit increases based on evaluations from division commanders is also being considered, noted Det. Hennon. Under this agreement, officers could earn an extra $300.

Several points under the contract terms of the Public Employees Relations Commission were also clarified, said the detective.

Under the new contract, starting patrolmen will earn $16,713, with a six-step ladder of increases up to $21,600, said Det. Hennon. Each step represents an approximate $1,000 pay increase. Sergeants will be making $23,760.

For 1982, patrolmen will start at $18,134, with increases to a maximum of $23,436. Sergeants will earn $25,779.

Det. Hennon noted that the increases this year have stayed between the federal guidelines, which have wavered between 7 and 9 percent.

East Windsor

Charges of simple assault and criminal mischief were lodged following an altercation in the parking lot of Club 8 on Mercer Street on Dec. 28, police report.

Mertyn Marshall, 36, of the Hampton Arms Apartments and Joshua Whiting, 62, of Hightstown were charged with two and one counts respectively of simple assault after scuffling with Bernard Mobley, 30, of Mercer Street, the club's "bouncer." The two filed counter charges of assault against Mr. Mobley.

When Ptl. Thomas Cichocki arrived on the scene he struggled with Mr. Marshall, who kicked the rear right door of the patrol car, causing some damage. He was additionally charged with criminal mischief.

ON DECEMBER 30, police say, a pocketbook was stolen from Mr. B's Pizza Parlor, located in the Jamesway Shopping Center, on Route 130.

The pocketbook, including its contents was valued at $200. Ptl. Howard Wood, investigated.

IN THE EVENING of New Year's Day police received a report of a burglary in progress in Building K of the Windsor Castle Apartments. Upon arrival the officers discovered the apartment's front door open and its glass windows broken.

Ptl. Harry Lowdermilk arrested Anthony Eugene Chaney, 25, of Asbury Park, after discovering him inside. Mr. Chaney was charged with criminal mischief and criminal trespass, and was released pending a court appearance.

AT ABOUT the same time Ptl. Tom Ciaccio, Ptl. Lowdermilk's back-up officer, received a report of another possible burglary in building F of the Windsor Castle Apartments.

Discovered inside the apartment was 21-year-old Jeffrey Haisosnak, of Lawrenceville, who was charged with criminal trespass and possession of under 25 grams of a controlled dangerous substance, believed to be methamphetamine, police said.

A BICYCLE thief made off with a lady's 27-inch, blue 10-speed Schwinn and a boy's three-speed blue Schwinn on New Year's Eve, police say. The value of the two bikes removed from the fenced-in back yard on Iverson Place was $332. Ptl. Joe Michnisky investigated.

IT WAS discovered on Dec. 31 that someone had broken into the storage area of building O on Dennison Drive, Twin Rivers, and had removed $335 worth of tools, police report. Investigating is Ptl. Thomas Cichocki.

A SHEFFIELD DRIVE residence was burgled on Jan. 3, police say. The burglar walked off with $1,200 worth of jewelry after ransacking the dining room, master bedroom and rear bedroom. Entry was gained through the rear wooden door, which had been forced. Leading the investigation is Ptl. Howard Wood.

AN EAST WINDSOR man, John Shull, 20, was charged with driving while intoxicated and possession of under 25 grams of marijuana by Sgt. Robert Van Hise, following a minor car accident at the intersection of Route 130 and Hankins Road. There were no injuries resulting from the one-car accident.

POLICE REPORT the discovery on Sunday that $4,770 worth of property was removed from an apartment in building 52 of the Windsor Regency complex.

Taken were coins, jewelry, silverware, a portable television, a stereo system, and a clarinet, after the front door lock was pried. Leading the investigation is Ptl. Thomas Ciaccio.

Hightstown

Borough police report that a Hightstown man was assaulted on Jan. 1 while walking on Roger Avenue.

The 21-year-old's injuries were serious enough to require medical treatment, which he received at the Medical Center at Princeton. There was no apparent reason for the attack.

On Jan. 4, acting on information from reliable sources, police arrested two residents of Norwalk, Conn., at 145 Rogers Ave.

Charged with assault were Andre Morgan, 22, and Mike Holley, 18, by Ptl. Ray Stachurski. Bail was set at $1,000 for both Norwalk residents, who were scheduled to appear in court on Jan. 8.

AT APPROXIMATELY 10:15 p.m. on Jan. 1 police received a report of a trespasser in the garage of a South Main Street residence. Upon arrival at the scene they took Thadeus Gould, 31, of 278 Academy St. into custody.

He was charged by Ptl. Kevin Hopkins with criminal trespass.

THE LAUNDRY room of the Westville Apartments was the scene of criminal mischief discovered on Jan. 5, police report.

A person (or persons) did approximately $200 worth of damage to several washing machines while trying to steal money from their coin boxes. Investigating is Ptl. Robert Zlanoski.

BETWEEN 6 P.M. on Dec. 24 and 9 a.m. on Dec. 26 an undetermined number of Timex watches were removed from the Cunningham Pharmacy on Main Street. Entry was gained through a side window, which had been broken. Investigating is Ptl. James Jackson.

SOMETIME BETWEEN New Year's Eve and Jan. 2, police say, the Hightstown High School was entered.

The investigating officers found several arrows wrapped in rags and tied with wires on the floor of the cafeteria. The arrows had burnt out by themselves, leaving marks on the carpet. There were no signs of forced entry.

Leading the investigation is Ptl. Jackson.

APPROXIMATELY 74 Timex watches were taken from Hightstown Stationery Inc., on Main Street, sometime between Jan. 3 and Jan. 5, police say. The front door had been forced to gain entry. Investigating are Lt. George Warshany and Ptl. Robert Zdanoski.

POLICE REPORT that on Jan. 5 a former employee of Continental Independent Security, Inc. of Hightstown came to headquarters with two checks issued by the company that the banks would not honor. The first had "bounced."

Barry Rittenhouse, of Hamilton Township, signed two complaints against Continental, charging his former employer with issuing bad checks.

ON THE AFTERNOON of Jan. 5 a pair of skates valued at around $25 were taken, after their owner had briefly left them by Peddie Lake, say police.

The 15-year-old owner spotted two youths leaving the scene when he returned to where he had left the skates. Det. Don Stanziale is investigating.

Crime prevention tips

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following information has been supplied by the East Windsor Police Department's Crime Prevention Unit. The Crime Prevention Unit will offer tips once a month to aid area residents in their efforts to avoid preventable crimes.

REDUCING AUTO THEFT

Most of the 1 million cars stolen in the United States each year are left unlocked; many have the keys left inside. Please remember to lock your car and take your keys whenever you leave your car unattended. By doing so, you will greatly reduce your chances of being victimized.

Avoid parking in public lots for extended periods of time. A car is five times more likely to be stolen from an unattended lot. Shopping center and apartment parking lots are frequent targets of auto thieves. Never hide a spare key inside your car. At night, park in a well-lighted, well-traveled area where a thief is more likely to be seen.

Security devices such as an interior hood release and a vehicle alarm system can be of help. Consider installation of a second ignition switch or "kill switch" which opens the circuit directly at the coil or distributor. Also consider installation of a fuel switch which closes a valve that cuts off the fuel supply. Smooth, tapered door latches that cannot be unlocked by a wire or coat hanger are also good deterrents. Don't be careless just because your vehicle is fully insured. Thefts increase insurance costs and thieves use stolen vehicles to commit other crimes.

Make Crime Prevention one of your New Year's resolutions. Take steps to safeguard your family, home, and property.

Guns DO kill people, despite NRA cliches

Assemblyman Clifford Snedeker has taken a critical position as pertains to Gov. Byrne's suggestion that New Jersey enact a strong handgun law.

It is odd to see Mr. Snedeker issue a press release with statements culled from every National Rifle Association release of the last decade. He protests that criminals will not give up their guns, so that such a law would force only honest citizens to surrender the guns they look upon for their self-protection.

To Mr. Snedeker's credit he did not come out with the old saw that "guns don't kill people, people kill people." The NRA has gotten a long run out of that inane statement.

There is one argument, however, employed by the assemblyman which has merit, but I doubt if he would enthusiastically carry it to its logical end. He insists that New Jersey cannot rid itself of handguns simply by making their possession illegal in the Garden State. Guns would still come in from New York, Pennsylvania and other states, he notes.

He is absolutely right. This is what has made a mockery of New York's strict handgun law and given the NRA and its fellow travelers a telling argument against such legislation.

One needn't be a scholar to deduce that the criminal element will transport handguns across state lines. The obvious solution is a national handgun ban, a ban not only on the possession of handguns, but also on their manufacture, import, transport and sale. Exceptions would be made, of course, for law enforcement agencies and the special handguns employed in target shooting.

But let's be realistic. There is no chance of getting a handgun ban through Congress. Despite the evidence of poll after poll showing the majority of persons in favor of such legislation, the NRA and other rightist elements keep all such legislation far from the floor of Congress.

Therefore Gov. Byrne is to be commended for taking a step—hopeful of joining New Jersey with New York in reducing the carnage taken every year from such weapons. And many of those who kill with handguns are not criminals, but merely ordinary citizens who lose control of their senses and reach for the handy family gun. That is a great tragedy which could be lessened.

Perhaps a gentleman writing to the New York Times recently had the best idea. He noted that the gun advocates cite the Constitution for their right to bear arms. He counters with the suggestion that strict legislation concerning ammunition for handguns be considered since the Constitution says nothing about that. "Let them keep their guns and belt each other over the head with them," he said.

At least the rest of us will be safe.

January — it's the season for sales

January is traditionally the big clearance month for many retailers. This is a time when many people can pick up some good bargains on the merchandise that wasn't bought during the pre-Christmas rush.

Many retailers have reported that their holiday sales this season were not very good, so there may be even more bargains out there this year for consumers who look closely.

Blankets, quilts, sheets, pillow cases, bedspreads, curtains and towels are the items which are reduced during the January "White Sales." Consumers should look for bargains on these items, as well as other items which are normally quite expensive. Down quilts, for example, may be on sale.

These items offer a hidden savings factor: because they are light enough to eliminate the need for much covering, you can turn down the heat at night while your family is asleep and save on energy costs.

YOU SHOULD remember that sheets with designer labels, even though they may be on sale, may run as much as twice the price of non-designer products. Ask yourself whether it's worth the extra money to buy nothing more than a fancy name.

Generally, heavy weight muslin sheets are long-lasting and less expensive, while percale is softer, less bulky and saves some laundering. And as a general rule you pay less for white towels than color or print towels.

Other good January buys include fake and real furs, raincoats and quilted down or polyester parkas and ski jackets. This is a good time to take the family shopping for winter coats. Remember, even if the coats which the children are wearing this winter are fine now, they may outgrow them by next year and winter clothes are at their most expensive during the fall season.

Many stores have Christmas gift or holiday items still in stock. Notions, stationery, leftover toys, books and electronic items may be on special this month. Keep your eyes open for the special sales. Turkeys, hams and other holiday gift foods may also be left in stock. There's no reason why you can't enjoy holiday gift foods at a big post-holiday family gathering.

NEW BOOKLETS: There are two new booklets available from the Consumer Information Center that could save you money. "What You Should Know About Your Auto Emissions Warranty" doesn't exactly sound like the title of a thrilling best seller. But the booklet contains some solid tips about steps you should take if your new or used car develops any problems that cause it to fail to meet federal emissions standards.

The booklet notes that your car's manufacturer must repair or replace any part that controls or affects emissions if: (1) your car is less than five years old and has less than 50,000 miles on it, (2) the defective part is an original engine part that failed because of a defect in materials or workmanship, and (3) the part failure caused your car to exceed federal air pollution emissions standards.

The second booklet is entitled, "Is Solar Water Heating Right For You?" As the price of heating oil rises and the cold winter pushes energy bills higher and higher, many people are looking for alternatives. Heating water accounts for about 20 cents of every household energy dollar you spend. And a lot of people are considering solar hot water heating.

This booklet, prepared by the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development, answers many of the questions the average homeowner may have about the benefits of solar.

Both of the booklets are available for no charge by sending a postcard to the Consumer Information Center, Pueblo, Colorado 81009.

Also, ask for a copy of the Consumer Information Catalog which lists over 200 free and low-cost consumer publications. This is a remarkable resource, covering information on a wide variety of topics with something for just about everyone.

Deja vu? A returning experience

So the new electronic football game that your son (translate that to "you") wanted so much for Christmas did not work (translate that to "was not worked") properly?

Back to the store...but be wise — all will be back there the day after that important holiday. Delay. Procrastinate. Alibi. Forget. Wait.

Monday, Jan. 5, all the returning hordes are gone. That part turns out to be true and on the surface eminently wise. There are no long lines, no crowds, no parking problems, no crazy drivers, no snowstorms.

BACK TO the store from which it was purchased, downstairs to the right department, wait in line a short while. The answer from the then unharassed sales clerk: "We don't sell that kind. May I please see your sales slip."

Confidently the returnee produces the sales slip and is promptly told, ever so politely, "That's a catalog purchase, second floor." In defense of the store, the wife neglected to tell the returnee that was the case.

Off to catalog sales, second floor. Short wait. Wrong desk. What is needed is catalog service. Now it's a long wait despite the fact that only one other customer has number 24 and you are 25. Apparently number 24 wants to return all the household goods that were purchased for her for the holidays.

Finally number 25 is called as reinforcements are sent to the catalog service desk. Once again the returnee is confronted with a smiling, unharassed helper. (That's a bit mind-boggling after the type of helper presented at pre-Christmas time.)

"What's wrong?" you are asked. "It doesn't work," you reply with a good deal of apprehension. Will you be condemned for failure to read the instructions? Did you buy the wrong kind of battery? Was the plastic-encased gadget dropped? Were you on offense when you should have been on defense? Was it set for one player or two?

NO NEED for all this trepidation; the simple question is "cash or charge. Cash, you say, not really knowing, since the wife bought the widget.

A cash receipt is promptly made out — as prompt as an array of paperwork will allow. Hence the now-no-longer returnee turns to the next line — the cashier.

Once again, not a long line, but the knack of getting in back of the person with the most problems in the store prevailed. Another 15 minutes gone, but the cash-in real money — is turned over with the flick of a pen and one signature on a five-part carbon form.

Net "profit" from the entire adventure is $31.94. Not bad. That's deductible from Christmas expenses — even Internal Revenue should concede that. Then, deduct the lunch of some $3, and give the cash back to the original purchaser so that she can replace the broken with a good one — maybe.

Do not show the store receipt lest it come up $3 short.

East Windsor's changing guard

An odd coalition was formed Monday evening when Jay Johnson was returned to the mayor's chair by the East Windsor Township Council. The Democratic mayor on a Democratically dominated council needed the support of the council's two Republicans in order to preserve his position.

Following the council's reorganization meeting, the whispers of deals and dissatisfaction with the mayor's leadership over the past year began to surface.

But Mr. Johnson, who some say "plays it cool, keeps his cards close to his chest and then does what is most politically expedient," was able to survive the challenge to his leadership.

The coalition which supported the mayor appears (to someone who knows none of the personalities involved) to be made up of those looking for a chance to have something to say in running the township.

David Schnitzer, the rumors say, wanted his own shot at the mayor's post, so his elevation to deputy mayor (for which Mr. Johnson nominated him) gives him a slice of the pie again. Republicans David Weinberg and newcomer Debbie Baker have put out a political IOU to the mayor and Mr. Schnitzer by providing their support in both instances.

Mrs. Baker was given the second council member's position on the Planning Board (the first goes automatically to the mayor), a body which is second only to the council in influencing the lives of East Windsor residents.

Mrs. Baker's appointment, through the same coalition which elected the mayor and deputy mayor, raises speculation that the Republicans got their share of the pie by supporting Mr. Johnson and Mr. Schnitzer.

The three other members of the council, all Democrats, may now find themselves without the power they once enjoyed. Leonard Millner took a shot at becoming mayor and was rebuffed. He was supported by Martin Charney and Kay Gould, the other council members who seem to have lost influence.

Mrs. Gould, who has put in long hours of service to the township in her positions as deputy mayor and Planning Board member, seems to have been the big loser. It is possible she challenged the mayor at the wrong time without enough support.

The bottom line for all the shenanigans is what will serve the township best. Three of the people who have put in much work for East Windsor in the past year may have lost their influence. Mayor Johnson has been absent from a number of meetings, both Planning Board and council, during the past year, while Mrs. Gould has been on hand to fill in for him.

While Mrs. Baker is youthful and intelligent, the double burden of council and Planning Board duties has to be difficult for anyone trying to assimilate the copious amount of work which the two bodies generate.

I can only hope that the council members who have taken on these positions do a conscientious job for East Windsor and that the members who were not on the winning side on Monday night will still be willing to give East Windsor the best they can.

Now's time to give thanks

To the Editor:

At Christmas time it is proper to give thanks for gifts received.

In a span of 15 months we were able to raise sufficient funds to present, to the Hightstown High School, a modern set of stands in order to accommodate the visitors at football and track events that are held each spring and fall.

On a smaller scale we contributed to the purchase of practice equipment for the basketball program.

Monies for these items were donated by the residents of the Hightstown/East Windsor community through their support of our fund raising events.

We thank you all and to the Windsor-Hights Herald — a bouquet for keeping the community posted on our efforts.

Children's concert impresses visitor

To the Editor:

On Friday, Dec. 19, the Kreps School had its Holiday Choral program. I am most fortunate to have been asked by one of the mothers to attend, since I have only grown children.

The quality of the music and the presentation was superb. I have attended many programs with much older children that weren't nearly as well done. I was amazed at the talent in the school and also the great job that is being done by the music department.

The thing that impressed me most was the children's behavior. They were so attentive and only had to be told once to quiet down when it became necessary. I am most proud that we have such a terrific group of children and teachers in the Kreps school.

Goodman to head merged bank

Leslie E. Goodman of East Windsor has been elected president, chief executive officer and a director of First National State Bank-County, headquartered in Teanahoc.

Mr. Goodman since August, 1979, has been president of First National State Bank of Central Jersey, which is now merged with the former First National Bank of South Jersey. Both the South Jersey bank and First National State Bank-County are affiliates of First National State Bancorporation, the state-wide parent company of six New Jersey banks. The bank formerly headquartered in Trenton was also a First National State affiliate, and will continue to operate its three offices in Trenton and one in Lawrenceville as before, as part of First National State Bank of South Jersey.

Mr. Goodman, 37, joined the First National State organization at its Newark headquarters in 1966 after he was graduated summa cum laude from Rutgers University. He also has earned a master's degree in business administration from Rutgers and is a graduate of the university's Law School in Camden. He has been admitted to the bar in both New Jersey and Pennsylvania.

In 1973 Goodman joined First National State Bank of Central Jersey as a vice president and senior loan officer. He subsequently was made executive vice president.

In addition to serving on the boards of many local and community organizations in the Mercer County area, he is a member of Robert Morris Associates, New Jersey Credit Executives and Young President's Organization. He has also served as an instructor in money and banking and in credit administration for the American Institute of Banking.

THE MEDICAL CENTER CORNER

John W. Kauffman, President

In 1954, Dr. Edwin D. Rogers, a young psychiatrist on the Princeton University Staff, became a member of the Attending Medical Staff at the Medical Center. Prior to the early fifties, psychiatric patients were cared for in state mental institutions and psychiatric hospitals.

Dr. Rogers was a pioneer in bringing about the transition in medicine of isolating the mental patient, and was instrumental in establishing a psychiatric service at the then, Princeton Hospital. He gained the confidence of the Medical Staff, and, up to 1971 when Princeton House was founded, he and the ever-growing Department of Psychiatry cared for psychiatric patients in an integrated system with medical and surgical patients. The program was successful, in that more than 90 percent of the patients hospitalized were returned to life in the community. Dr. Rogers and the Department of Psychiatry, although proud of their record, were always aware of the lack of support therapeutic services, and dreamed of more modern facilities. Planning went on for more than four years, and when the Princeton House Unit became available, the end of the tunnel and fulfillment of a dream were in sight.

The Princeton House Unit of The Medical Center at Princeton opened on July 1, 1971, and was the first free-standing hospital affiliated facility in New Jersey. Today, more than nine years after its founding, it is a monument to the belief that mental illness, alcoholism and drug-related problems are illnesses that should not be isolated from community care. Today, Dr. Rogers' ideas of the fifties are more than justified by the slow but certain phasing out of our state mental institutions.

Princeton House has three main programs: Short- and intermediate-term psychiatric treatment; alcoholic detoxification and rehabilitation; and outpatient care. A full range of patient services are available, including: 1) individual psychotherapy; 2) group therapy; 3) family counseling; 4) psycho-pharmacologic treatment; 5) specialized nursing care; 6) occupational therapy programs; 7) electro-convulsive therapy; and 8) medical evaluation and consultation.

Also, Princeton House offers carefully planned activities therapy programs, including creative arts and crafts, a patient library and music room, and a variety of recreational activities. In addition, Princeton House patients utilize nearby community facilities for shopping trips, bowling, tennis, swimming and theater outings.

The team approach is used for both inpatient and outpatient programs. The attending psychiatrist, representatives of nursing, social work, adjunctive therapies and alcoholism meet regularly to share observations and plan, under the direction of the attending psychiatrist, a therapeutic program best suited to each individual patient.

Princeton House has plans for additional space. At the time of admission, some patients must be confined, and we need a small closed unit. We also need a gymnasium and additional therapy and recreation facilities. I am sure these needs will become a reality in the not so distant future. In the meantime, Princeton House is a service that the community can have confidence in and which has excellent medical dedication and direction.

community programs. A course in Journal Writing is intended to develop self-expression.

The Adult Department has also scheduled a four-session Investment Seminar Series, a workshop on Vocational Choices, a program on Building Self-Confidence, and On Your Own, a program designed for separated or divorced women.

Families can participate in several Parent/Child programs being offered this winter, among them learning how to play chess and solving puzzles. Also for children and parents are a Beginning Chinese Cooking class and a workshop for making Valentine's Day Creations.

Youngsters can discover how fascinating science can be in Ms. Whiz, a new program offered by the Youth Department, or decorate doll houses with creations from two programs, Crocheting and Doll House Furniture. For more creative fun, the Studio Art Workshop offers the chance to experiment with materials and techniques artists use.

The Health, Physical Education and Recreation Department has many exercise, dance and aquatics programs to help women get fit. Middle East Dance, Slim and Trim, Swedish Gymnastics and Aerobic Dance are just a few of the popular classes back again this winter session.

education classes for labor and delivery begin, and couples are encouraged to attend this class together.

Business management topic

Nunzio Cerero, accountant, investment counselor, and instructor in the commerce division of Mercer County Community College, will speak to the Princeton Branch of the National League of American Pen Women. "Small Business Management" will be his topic at the 10 a.m. meeting on Saturday, Jan. 10 at the Rocky Hill Community House on route 518.

Area women working in the creative arts, whether artists, writers, or crafts-women, are faced with similar problems of marketing, record keeping, taxation, and control. Many do not realize that the professional handling of their talents constitutes a small business. The Princeton Branch extends an invitation to all interested women to attend, and take advantage of this opportunity for guidance.

Mr. Cerero has taught at the college for four years, but finds most of his effort involved in counseling at the Small Business Development Center there. In this area for twelve years, he has spoken frequently at seminars concerned with investment counseling.

The National League of American Pen

Women has been promoting the development of creative talents of women artists, writers, dramatists, lecturers, and composers since its founding in 1897. Attracted to the League are those who recognize the advantage of association with others having common goals. They share similar needs and problems, and there is the opportunity to share solutions as well.

Any questions may be directed to Judi Niemann at 737-3337 or president Joan Carris at 921-6206.

Whale film, expert at Watersheds meet

Scott McVay, well-known whale expert and co-author of the famous "Songs of the Humpback Whale," has led two expeditions to the Alaskan Arctic to study the rare endangered Bowhead in its native habitat. The award-winning film documentary on the unique expeditions, "In Search of the Bowhead Whale," will be presented as a special family event on Sunday, Jan. 11 at 4 p.m. at the Princeton Day School Theatre by the Stony Brook-Millstone Watersheds Association.

A 19th century whaling captain observed, "There is something extremely painful in the destruction of a whale," yet today this 70-ton mammal has been brought close to extinction. The viewers of this film, photographed and produced by Bill Mason of the National Film Board of Canada, are included in the discoveries of the nine-man team, its close encounters with the Bowhead, its daily activities, and life on the treacherous Arctic shores where the Eskimo still hunts the Bowhead with centuries' old methods.

Mr. McVay will be there to present his commentary and to answer audience questions. Tickets, which may be purchased at the door, are $3 for children and $5 for adults. Proceeds will benefit the Watersheds' educational and recreational programs.

Robert G. Rouse

Robert G. Rouse, 82, a major figure in banking, died on Dec. 29 at Princeton Hospital.

During his career as a central banker, he had served 22 years as manager of the Federal Reserve System's Open Market Account — longer than any other individual.

He retired from active participation in banking in July 1977 and lived in Meadow Lakes in Hightstown for the last two years.

In October 1964, Mr. Rouse received the first U.S. Treasury Distinguished Service Award, the Treasury's highest award to a citizen who is not a Treasury employee.

Mr. Rouse was an officer of the Federal Reserve of New York from 1939 until his retirement in 1964.

He began his banking career at Guaranty Trust Co. (now Morgan Guaranty) in 1919 following graduation from Princeton University.

In 1930 he became a lending officer and two years later was named assistant to the vice president and treasurer with responsibility for the trust company's money position and investment account.

About four years later he helped develop Guaranty's U.S. government bond department and was one of the officers in charge of the department when he joined the Federal Reserve Bank of New York as an assistant vice president.

In November 1939, he was promoted to vice president and a month later was additionally appointed manager of the system's open market account. As manager, he supervised federal reserve purchases and sales of U.S. government securities.

In May 1962 Mr. Rouse was appointed senior adviser to the New York Federal Reserve Bank.

Following his retirement in 1964, Mr. Rouse joined Laidlaw & Co., private New York bankers, as a consultant and an adviser, and in March 1965, he became a Laidlaw partner.

In 1968, Hambro American Bank and Trust Co. purchased the banking division of Laidlaw and Mr. Rouse became a director of Hambro.

In 1970, Mr. Rouse assisted in the organization of Barclays Bank of New York and served as a director until June 1977.

From 1970 until July 1977, Mr. Rouse served as a director of the State Bank of Raritan Valley.

He is survived by his wife, Rita; two sons, Robert G. of Farmingdale, N.Y. and Denton H. of Rincon, Ga.; two sisters, Mrs. Marion R. Moulds of Coral Gables, Fla., and Mrs. Constance R. Demarest of New York; and three grandchildren.

bar mitzvah

Neil Morris, son of Mr. and Mrs. Steven Morris, East Windsor, became a Bar Mitzvah at Beth El Synagogue on Dec. 6.

Neil chanted his haftorah from the book of Aachariah. On Friday evening he helped conduct Shabbat services.

Rabbi Ronald Roth gave the Bar Mitzvah charge. Gary Rosensweig, a trustee of Beth El Synagogue, presented Neil with a prayer book, Kiddush cup, and "The Second Jewish Catalog" on behalf of the synagogue, Sisterhood, and Men's Club.

Neil attends the Grace Rogers School. He is a graduate of the Beth El Religious School and attends the Beth El Hebrew High School. He plays basketball for P.A.L. and is a member of the Kadimah youth group.

Kenneth Bruce Tannenbaum, the son of George and Florence Tannenbaum, celebrated his bar mitzvah on Sunday, Dec. 7.

The services were held at the Morris Namias Shalom Torah Academy and the reception was held in the American Hotel of Freehold.

Kenneth is an eighth grade student at the Grace Norton Rogers School in Hightstown and is the treasurer of the Junior National Conference of Synagogue youth in East Windsor.

Kenneth Weingarten, son of Paul and Rochelle Weingarten of East Windsor, was called to the Torah on the occasion of becoming Bar Mitzvah on Nov. 22. The service took place at Congregation Beth Chaim in West Windsor. During the service, Kenneth's parents and grandparents, Murray and Eleanor Lapinsky and Ben and Sylvia Weingarten were called by Rabbi Wisnis to assist during the Torah service.

Kenneth attends the Melvin H. Kreps school and is currently in the eighth grade. He is an honor student and plans on becoming a dentist. He participates in tennis, hockey, football, baseball and basketball.

State to find Medicaid funds

The threatened cutbacks in the Medicaid program will be averted, Gov. Brendan Byrne and legislative leaders said Monday.

"We have met and discussed it and worked it out," Gov. Byrne reportedly said. "Hopefully we'll be able to use some of the surplus in the budget."

Last week Human Services Commissioner Ann Klein sent out a newsletter notifying Medicaid recipients and providers that proposed $38.6 million in cuts would eliminate all non-mandated services such as dental care, pharmaceuticals, artificial limbs and other medical services.

"Unless the Legislature appropriates additional funds or these proposed cuts are implemented, the Medicaid program will run out of money by May 1," Ms. Klein said. She projected the 1981 deficit in the Medicaid budget as possibly more than $50 million.

The projected cutbacks, scheduled to go into effect on Feb. 10, could affect about 627,000 New Jersey residents, most of them poor or elderly.

What this may mean for some area residents is that they would be unable to purchase drugs, glasses, receive counseling, or stay in private nursing homes. Gary Fagan, a local dentist pointed out that there are no public dental clinics, and that the price schedule at even the large private clinics would discourage some patients from seeking needed dental care. Another dentist said that he is already hesitant to accept Medicaid patients because the state's payments are "not commensurate with the work."

Conceivably, Medicaid patients at private nursing homes could be turned out or sent back to private hospitals if they were fortunate, said one retirement community administrator.

"Hospitals are overcrowded as it is," he said. "It is not likely that they would accept them (Medicaid patients) all back."

"No one has ever been turned out of here before for lack of money," said Meadow Lakes Retirement Community director Don Ream. "We'd hope for more voluntary contributions from the churches, or the hardship would fall on us," he said. Meadow Lakes is the only one of three retirement communities in the immediate area which is non-profit. About 10 percent of its medical patients are on Medicaid.

Money will be found to make up the huge Medicaid deficit from this year's budget surplus, said several Assemblymen this week. Richard Van Wagner (D-Monmouth County), chairman of the Revenue and Appropriations Committee, estimated a surplus of approximately $180 million in this year's state budget.

"I have been told by the governor's office that a solution to this problem is a top priority of the administration and I also have been assured by the Speaker of the Assembly that a legislative solution is forthcoming. Based on these commitments I am optimistic that a solution will be found," said Commissioner Klein Tuesday at a hearing on the proposed cutbacks. The remaining five hearings on the matter have been cancelled, pending action by the Legislature, which begins its session on Jan. 13.

Several area Medicaid providers expressed no surprise at the expected resolution of the funding problem.

"We've been through this a few times in the past," said a Hightstown druggist who has some Medicaid clients. His words were echoed by other providers, including nursing home administrators, dentists, and psychologists, one of whom stated, "It's all politics, a power play for more money. I wouldn't get too excited about it (the proposed cutbacks) until we find out what the Legislature is going to do."

Pupils to be treated to musical 'Sidekicks'

Pushcart Players, a traveling theatre company for young audiences based in Verona, will present its most recent musical, "Sidekicks," for students at the Walter C. Black School on Stockton Street in Hightstown on Jan. 16 at 1:30 p.m.

"Sidekicks," written by Ruth Fost and Carole Wechter, is a musical play which explores the ups and downs of friendship. It features an array of songs and stories in which young audiences will meet outrageous characters who help to illustrate the wide variety of dynamics inherent in any friendship.

Some of the characters included are bumbling pirates and their equally bumbling skipper, a helpless heroine, a sneering villain and two not-so-brave musketeers; also, the sun, a raincloud and a chorus line of flowers. Through the use of revolving flats, costume pieces and suggestive props, these and other characters humorously and sometimes poignantly describe the many different needs which friends can fulfill in one another, a spokesman said.

Pushcart Players is funded in part by the New Jersey State Council on the Arts, the National Endowment for the Arts, the Florence and John Schumann Foundation, the Geraldine R. Dodge Foundation, the Business Arts Foundation of New Jersey and the Essex County Division of Employment Training.

THE MEMBERS of Kol Simcha, who will perform a concert at the First Presbyterian Church of Hightstown on Jan. 11 at 7:30 p.m.

Kol Simcha concert set

"Kol Simcha" will present a concert of music, dance, worship and praise at the First Presbyterian Church, North Main Street, Hightstown, Sunday, Jan. 11 at 7:30 p.m.

Reflecting their name (Hebrew for "Sound of Joy"), the group sings, claps, dances, and inspires its audiences to do the same. The music of Kol Simcha comes from the Tenach with scripture verses primarily from Psalms, Isaiah and Jeremiah. Their Hebrew and English songs display a strong Chassidic influence.

This unique group of Messianic Jews has appeared on local and national television in the United States and Canada and has released an album on the Messianic Records label. They have been enthusiastically received in synagogues, churches and college campuses in both countries, a spokesman said.

The Seekers couples club, the Women's Association, and the church are jointly sponsoring the Kol Simcha concert on Jan. 11. The public is invited and a free will offering will be taken.

Poster contest honors Jerusalem

Each winner will receive a copy of the book "Children of the World Paint Jerusalem." The first place winner from the school will enter his/her poster in the regional contest. All posters will be on display in the Synagogue on Maple Stream Road from Jan. 9-18.

Johnson

Kay Gould, but whatever was done I feel was done in the best interest of the community."

IN THE OPENING minutes of this meeting, Township Clerk Elizabeth Nolan called for nominations for the mayor's position. As a small crowd looked on, Mayor Johnson's name was passed over.

Councilman Martin Charney immediately offered his peer, Leonard Millner as a candidate. Both men are Democrats. Then, Mrs. Baker nominated Mr. Weinberg for the position, a move he later jokingly said was "symbolic."

In the first round of voting, Mr. Millner failed to receive the nomination by a 4-3 vote. Mr. Weinberg then became the subject of the vote taking — he too, went down to defeat by a 3-2 margin. There were two abstentions.

Mrs. Nolan, noting that the candidates had failed to carry a majority, again asked for nominations. This time, Mr. Schnitzer nominated Mayor Johnson, while Mrs. Gould put Mr. Millner's name into the running again.

Mayor Johnson at this point was reelected to the position he has claimed nine times in his 11-year involvement with council. The mayor then nominated Mr. Schnitzer as deputy mayor, while

Mrs. Gould failed to receive any nomination.

MRS. GOULD later said that in earlier discussions between Democrats, three men — Mayor Johnson, Mr. Millner, and Mr. Schnitzer — had all expressed interest in the mayor's seat. She and other council members had urged a rotation of the mayor and deputy mayor duties among members, much the same as the Mercer County Board of Freeholders.

Mrs. Gould said that at no time during the discussions she was involved in, had the Democrats been able to resolve their differences. She suggested that a problem facing Mr. Schnitzer and Mayor Johnson was that neither had a council member to nominate them.

Planning Board members James Pierson and Sidney Kessous also failed to gain reelection to four-year terms. Other council appointments for 1981 included:

- Deputy Township Clerk — Gail J. Dibble, reappointed to a one-year term.
- Township Attorney — Michael Pane, reappointed to a one-year term.
- Township Auditor — William E. Antonides, reappointed to a one-year term.
- Township Prosecutor — Neil H. Schuster, reappointed to a one-year term.
- Economic Development Committee — three members, all appointed to three year terms, included Albert Grupper, George Vardakis, and William Portrude. Councilman Leonard Millner will also serve a one-year term.

—Health Board — Margaret Creese, to a five-year term, with another such term presently unfilled. Councilman David Weinberg will serve a one-year term.

—Local Assistance Board — Councilwoman Kay Gould, appointed to a one-year term.

—Planning Board — Mayor Johnson, reappointed to a one-year term; Mrs. Baker, appointed to a one-year term; Leon Krachyna and Art Piekielek, both appointed to four-year terms; Kevin Quince, reappointed to a two-year term as an alternate; and Mary Walsh-Russo, reappointed to a one-year term.

—Shade Tree Commission — Arthur Hirshman, appointed to a five-year term; and James Lashomb, appointed to an unexpired four-year term.

—Zoning Board — Richard Hayes and Michael Balint, both appointed to four-year terms; Cecilia Ott, reappointed to an unexpired term; and Marlene Berk and Johann Schneider, both appointed to two-year alternate terms.

Appointments to the East Windsor Municipal Utilities Authority and the Environmental Commission were both held over.

United Way is up

Johnson & Johnson Dental Products Co., located in East Windsor, has raised $13,058 for its United Way campaign. Francis J. Horsey, executive director of the Princeton Area Communities United Way, left, congratulates Robert D. DeLuca, the company's United Way campaign chairman.

Police

suspects in at least the beating case. There are four to be exact — a female juvenile, a woman and two men.

Det. Skimmons said one of the men was easy for police to track down — he has a long history of involvement in violent crimes in the area. Three of the suspects are "Trenton-based" while the fourth is from this area, say police. Possible arrests are pending.

Police say the information received from the informant was "totally voluntary" which she claims she offered because the incident, "was prying her conscience."

The Mercer County Prosecutor's office — including Lt. Fred Bruschini and investigator Ernie McNeil — have also been involved in the investigation.

Police now theorize that the attack on Mr. Green took place at or near the Barclay Camp, and not at a local pub as the informant had claimed.

much money they've budgeted for this area," he said.

The council also authorized the award of a contract for the following professional services: engineering, Thomas Tyler

Moore Associates, of Ewing Township; auditing, C. Bergen Groendyke and Company, of Lawrenceville; planning, Community Housing and Planning Associates, of Manhattan; attorney, Kester R. Pierson, of Princeton.

Clark is encouraged

Tourney action improves girls

It was a busy week for the Hightstown High School girls basketball team. The Rams saw action at home against Steinert and North Hunterdon, and on the road at New Brunswick. Although the locals managed only one win out of three, coach Ray Clark expressed his feeling that his squad was beginning to put it together.

The Rams travelled to New Brunswick for a Monday night game. And although Hightstown was downed 50-42 by the Zebras, Clark saw some good things in the contest. "New Brunswick's a pretty good team, but we gave them all they could handle. It was a rough game, the officials let it get out of hand. But we weren't intimidated. Our kids handled it well."

The game was played before a partisan home crowd that lent vocal support to the Zebras. It was also a rough game marked by lots of fouls. According to Clark, "The officials gave New Brunswick the calls. There was a lot of rough play, but the referees let them get away with it." That and the home court advantage was a difficult combination for the Rams to overcome.

THEY NEARLY did it, however. Hightstown fell behind twice, then caught up. The Zebras, now 5-2, scored in bunches to go ahead by 17 points with only 2:15 left to play. Clark then pulled out all the stops, using a variety of defenses including presses and traps to cut the lead to four points in the final seconds. But the Rams were unable to chip away any further, and finally succumbed by eight points.

The Hightstown offense was paced by Jennifer Scholl's 14 points and Vicky Fair's 12. Scholl scored all her points in the first half, while Fair's output was limited to the second half. "Both girls played real well in the game," observed

Clark. "I thought they each had 20 the way they played. New Brunswick was really roughing up Scholl and Fair, but that didn't stop them from playing well."

The Rams also received needed help from the backcourt and bench. Dawn Vetic started at one of the guard spots and turned in a good performance, while Ronda Alpert came off the bench to fill in in the Ram backcourt. "Ronda's a hustler. Plus she always has her head in the game. She contributed both ways," recalled Clark.

The Ram coach was pleased with the play of his 2-5 club. "They're starting to come around. We're going to be all right around midseason. Both Jennifer and Vicky are doing well, the guards are getting their confidence, and the bench is starting to contribute. As we gain more experience, we'll continue to improve."

THE RAMS hosted the Hightstown Invitational Christmas Basketball Tour-

namment, tending invitations to Steinert, North Hunterdon and Bordentown. And the locals showed just how good a host they could be by bowing to North Hunterdon 39-27 in the nitecap of the opening round.

The Rams came back the next day to take the consolation game from Steinert 50-41, while North Hunterdon remained undefeated at 7-0 as it turned back Bordentown 34-26 to cop the tourney championship.

The Rams took an early lead and held it throughout as they downed Steinert. Hightstown played the game in foul trouble; seven Rams were handicapped with four personals. The Spartans were able to take three times as many free throws as the Rams. Steinert mounted a challenge midway through the second half, closing to 33-32. But Hightstown fought off the rally and hung on to wrap

Burger King tops in bowling league

The first half of the Twin Rivers Bowling League season has been completed, and Burger King has come away with first place honors.

The King won five of seven points to spring over G & E Hardware into the top spot with a 79 - 47 mark. G & E, meanwhile, was able to take only two points and finished in second place with a record of 78 - 48. Commonwealth Land & Title Insurance (76 - 50) nipped Copper Bell Diner for third place (75 - 51), while Suburban Transit (72-54) and Hightstown Floor Covering (71 - 55) rounded out the top six finishers.

Joel Jacobson copped high game (246) and high games (630) for the evening. Other high games were recorded by Shelly Crohn with 235, Larry Raff with 228, and Roger Chard with 223.

The individual high game of the season was turned in earlier in the year by Carl Rothchild with a 269. Dave Gherman's 671 was the best three game series. On a team basis Hilton Inn had the season's best single and three game performances, 1,185 and 3,219, respectively.

Ed Vazquez' 188.5 average was the best among all the league bowlers, ahead of Gherman's 187.5, Raff's 186.3, Jeff Milstein's 185.6, and John Moran's 185.1.

PAL basketball season begins in six divisions

The East Windsor P.A.L. basketball league tipped off its 1981 season with 16 games played at all competitive levels.

In Cadet Boys action, Chicken 'N More trounced Express Press 23-3. The winners were powered by the offense of Mike Lunsky with 11 points and Sandip Dahara and Greg Polkowski with six apiece. Jody Pittman played well on defense.

For the losers Joey Pagliaro, Ethan Jeros and Jim Hittinger played well in defeat.

John Hess edged Little Moppets 6-4 in a tight defensive struggle. Eric Fagen had four points and Mike Grillo two for John's, while the defense of Greg Levine and Seth Rosenzweig forced Moppet turnovers. Mark Bonosko and David Winters shared the losers' point total.

Carduners was a 14-4 winner over the Game Room. The winners were led by Edson McClellan (six points) and Scott Howard (four). For the Game Room Chris Barless scored four points, while Tommy Driscoll contributed some timely defense.

Greenfield and Jason Katz, Carlton James and John Stern were standouts for the Shack.

East Windsor Floor Covering stopped PBA 191 23-10 as Howie Davner and Ted Wilms led the winners. Steve Van Praagh and Peter Phelan topped the PBA effort.

The Senior Girls league saw Princeton Crossroads Realty use its overwhelming height advantage to open up a 14-0 first half lead, then withstand a fourth period rally to defeat Hilton Inn 24-10.

For Crossroads Beth Cheney and Lorraine Jantz shared scoring honors with six markers each, while Jennifer Shaw paced the winners' defense. For Hilton Kim Bistrong and Jackie Rector had four points apiece.

Stackhouse, Crosshaw & Smith totally dominated Potter & Hillman 30-3, as Barbara Molloy led all scorers with 10 tallies and Hillary Cramer and Kim Capps chipped in with six each. Jaymie Witherspoon was a major factor for the winners, controlling both boards. Roseann Humphries had all three points for the losers.

In the other game Busy Bee topped PBA 191.

Manor Exxon 41-40 in a tightly played contest between two Senior Boys squads. D & M was led to its one point victory by Tom Anderson and Rich Shoblock, each with eight markers. Also for the winners Ralph Mann had seven points, and Lou Pescatore had six, including the game winner with four ticks left on the clock.

The difference, however, was the D & M defense, which held Cranbury to only one point in the third quarter, enabling the winners to open up a 15 point lead going into the final period. Cranbury put on a heroic rush in the final period, outscoring the opposition 22-8. But it wasn't enough as the rally fell short.

For the losers Joe Flatley led the attack with a dozen points, while Keith White added nine and Vincent Pitway threw in 11.

PBA 191 turned back North American Phillips 42-33, as the winner's second team took the floor in the second quarter to put PBA on top to stay. Bob Zipp, Keith Perry, Dan Heller, Mark Persky and Mitch Brown did an outstanding job to turn a four point first quarter deficit into a 13 point halftime lead.

JEFF REBH was high man for the winners with eight points, followed by Mitch Blum's seven. Chris Coyne and Craig Falk did the job off the boards as part of a total team effort.

For Phillips, Rick Bedford's 13 tallies and Angelo Granata's 11 paced the offense, while John Creegan and Lenny Marcocci did yeoman work under the boards.

Selective Personnel squeaked by Oops by Brise 26-25 in an Intermediate Boys contest. Jimmy Keller's 11 and Neil Gang's 10 points led the winners, but it was Bobby Rubin's bucket with five seconds left that gave Selective the decision.

Oops was led by Loren Lipkers' eight and six by Jeff Vitt, including two free throws in the final 30 seconds. Neil Lip-ton had five carroms for the losers.

RICHARDSON REALTY stopped Jaquar International 34-20 with a fine all around team effort highlighted by Martin Borosko's 11 points, and seven by Jason Hand and six by Joe Contiliano. Larry Leff and Tyke Fredericks were defensive standouts for Richardson. Jaquar was paced by Chris Barlow's 14 tallies, and six apiece by Charlie Pittman and Skip Manuel. Jerry Luz played well defensively.

Gordon & Wilson was a 35-21 winner over the Knights of Columbus as Chris Sisack played a fine all around game. The winners' scoring was balanced with seven players taking a hand in the final point total. The K of C attack was headed by Tony Diaforli's seven tallies.

The Cadet Girls division saw Magic Mirror ease past Dr. J's Chiros 10-8. Karen Peaden led the winners' attack as the Mirror overcame a four point deficit. Debra Ross' six led Dr. J's, with Kendy Fredericks and Laurie Tyler playing well on defense.

Hightstown Bowling Lanes knocked down Aljon's Pizza 7-4, with Diane Keller and Kate Roser playing well in the win. For Aljon's Aime Thierman, Jennifer O'Conner, Kim Leopp and Suzanne Frangione had good efforts.

National Car Rental stymied Shamrock Systems 25-6 behind Jessica Bergman's

14 point effort. Linda Gunnell added six, while Mara Sussman contributed tough defense. Valerie Cramer had four points for Shamrock, with Deidre Gonzales helping on defense.

In Junior Boys action, National Metalizing jumped into first place by winning its first two games, 24-14, over E.W. Pharmacy and 18-12 over Teleg Transportation. Ricky and Jimmy Contiliano led National in their first game with eight and six points respectively with Jimmy coming back for seven points in a hotly contested game with Teleg.

In other games, PBA 283 defeated Wess & Son builders 32-16 behind Billy McNights' 14 points. Anthony Vincents Hair Stylings, led by Josh Pasher's 14 points and Alan Meyers nine points, defeated Gelber's Floor Coverings, and Nebbia Chevrolet defeated Coma Auto Body 37-11 behind Malcolm Dowdy's 16 points and strong defense from Tim Bowling, Sean Chycota and Howard Fishman.

Tourney

up third place in the tournament.

Vicky Fair topped the Hightstown scorers with 17 points. Jennifer Scholl added 14, and Charlotte Wright chipped in with 11.

The host team was done in by cold shooting in its game against the Lionettes. The Rams were held without a field goal in the second quarter while tallying only two free throws, then went the first 4:20 of the third quarter before canning their first bucket of the second half. Additionally, Hightstown was nearly blanketed from the floor in the final period.

HIGHTSTOWN actually led after the first period 10-7. The locals were patient setting up on offense, and pressured the ball on the inbounds pass after a Ram score. But too often the Rams tried to force a pass inside to Jennifer Scholl in order for her to utilize her height advantage. This misfired into several Hightstown turnovers over the course of the game.

In the second period the Rams stood around too much on offense as they committed turnovers and bad passes. The Lionettes used a zone defense and pressed the ball in the forecourt to hold the Rams to two points from the charity line. But the Hightstown defense was nearly equal to that of North Hunterdon as the Lion-tes could manage only four points themselves. At the intermission the Rams held a one point lead and were very much in the game.

The roof collapsed in the third period, however, as the Ram shooting drought carried over into the third period. The Rams continued to have trouble getting the ball inside to Scholl, although she did assert herself more, using her height. Hightstown was unable to bring the ball upcourt against the North Hunterdon press which created lost balls and fouls by the Rams. In all the Rams tallied six points in this period while the Lionettes were hitting the twine for 13 markers and a six point advantage.

IN THE FINAL quarter the Ram defense allowed North Hunterdon to get free underneath. The locals tried to press the winners in the backcourt and on the inbounds pass, but the Lionettes beat that strategy with long passes upcourt to an open player. The Ram offense was still plagued by poor shooting, netting its only two pointer with nine seconds left in the game.

North Hunterdon displayed more discipline, patience, control, and better shooting than Hightstown. The locals had more turnovers (36) than points (27). Charlotte Wright led the Rams with 10 points, followed by Scholl's nine and Vicky Fair's eight.

Mr. Hall's
NOW checking interest
just made Mrs. Hall
very happy.

Last year, Midlantic's typical NOW depositor earned well over $250 interest on checking. And now that we've raised our rate to 5 1/4%, that figure will be even higher!

Don't misunderstand. NOW is not for everyone. But if you keep a "well-balanced" checking account, NOW can really pay off.

NOW gives you 5 1/4% interest* on every checking dollar... money that could have been sitting idle. Plus the convenience of a single account for both everyday checking and savings.

Keep a balance of $1000 or more and your checking is FREE of monthly service charges. Under $1000, there is a $5 charge for the month, but you still earn interest on every penny that's in the account. And with NOW at the Cranbury Bank, there's never a per-check charge.

We'll be glad to help you decide if NOW is right for you. If it is, just sit back and watch those dollars grow. NOW's your chance!

*5 1/4% interest paid on average daily collected balance, credited monthly

TRIANGLE CENTER

(609) 883-3600

Twenty-five or 30 years ago ice fishermen were thought of as possibly having a screw loose. Grown men standing around on a frigid ice-bound lake stamping their feet and pounding gloves together in an effort to keep warm, while waiting for a few fish to bite, probably did seem an unlikely sport to the uninitiated.

The fact that ice-fishing popularity has come such a long way since then can be attributed a lot to synthetics and manufacturing improvements in winter clothes, a trend towards winter sports in general, and especially a refinement in ice-fishing equipment and its availability in sporting goods stores.

When I started ice-fishing back in the 50s good tip-ups were hard to find in this area, and shiners or other bait were almost impossible to locate in the dead of winter. Most ice-fishing done in this state was on the larger lakes in North Jersey like Greenwood and Hopatcong.

NOW YOU can't find a popular lake in this area during winter without seeing another bunch of anglers there ahead of you, or indications that they've already been there. That's okay though. The frostbite clan is one of the least secretive group of sportsmen there is. Most are usually willing to help a newcomer to the sport, or stand around a bankside fire or a productive area and give advice, take advice, swap lies, or tell jokes, depending on how fast the action.

In the early days tip-ups baited with live shiners or other minnows were the number one method of ice-fishing and the most sought after fish was the chain pickerel. He still may be. Yellow perch ran a close second and the tip-ups were baited with smaller baitfish, or a jiggling rod with a small fluttering spoon was used.

But jiggling rod methods have really taken off in the last few years. Tackle refinement has further enhanced this part of the sport to the point where the soft-biting crappies and bluegills can be taken through the ice with increasing regularity. Tiny, thumbnail size jigs, iceflies, and spoons combined with mono line testing two pounds and less are being brought into play more and more by knowledgeable ice fishermen. Many anglers are making their own custom made jiggling rods from the sensitive tips of old fly and spinning rods. The results in the hands of an expert often produces catches of 50 or more panfish a day.

The secrets of success are not always that noticeable. When the fish are biting, it's important to be ready. Details like correct line strength, depth of lure, and right bait all contribute to success. But in ice-fishing for panfish, detecting the strike is probably the most important. I've seen guys fishing side by side apparently using the same technique and equipment. One catches fish. The other is fishless.

THE NEARBY chain of lakes on Assunpink Fish and Wildlife Management Area provides a good example. Sunrise, Stone Tavern and Assunpink Lakes all have a huge population of crappies, a good winter feeder. But in the dead of winter, fish are sluggish and feeding seems to be happening in slow motion. The fish approaches a lure or bait slowly and often studies it for a long time. The take is delicate, and the effect on any float or other indicator is slight. The fish often takes so gently that there is insufficient force to move a high floating bobber, or put the slightest feel in all but the most sensitive rod tip.

Using a bobber with just enough displacement to offset the weight of the bait and/or lure usually provides the sensitivity needed. These can be purchased in sizes from not much bigger than a pencil eraser on up. I buy them in several of the smallest sizes and they work perfectly. Generally a hit will make a baby bobber dip slightly and quiver. Set the hook immediately.

For lures I'm partial to miniature jigs, weighted flies, and spoons tipped with a single mouse grub. My favorite is a half-inch, weighted, gold ice spoon in hook size 12. Fish about a foot off the bottom for bluegills. Crappies will often suspend at various depths and may take a little searching out before you discover the right depth for fishing.

Ice-fishing provides the perfect pastime for the fisherman with a good case of cabin fever. The action is often fast and exciting. And best of all, the fat, fresh panfish filets provide a savory addition to winter meals.

TIME OFF

WEEK OF JANUARY 7 - 13, 1981

TIME OFF is a weekly feature of the Princeton Packet, Lawrence Ledger, Windsor-Hights Herald, Central Post, Manville News, Franklin News-Record, Hillsborough Beacon and Cranbury Press.

Morristown features 100 antique dealers

Some 100 exhibitors from a dozen surrounding states will present a vast and varied assemblage of vintage furniture, porcelains, paintings, clocks, toys, candle molds, weathervanes, candlesticks, quilts, jewelry, silver, scrimshaw, samplers, whirlygigs, pewter, et al... and everything's for sale, beginning Jan. 8.

The Morristown Antiques Fair's signature is that of a "something-for-everyone" show, with a broad price range, catering to the serious and the not-so-serious collector. A veritable treasure hunt, it has also come to be known for its one-of-a-kind, generally hard-to-come-by "bargains" in rarities and collectibles.

Hours for the fair will be noon to 10 p.m. on Thursday, Friday and Saturday, Jan. 8, 9 and 10; noon to 6 p.m. on Sunday, Jan. 11. The Armory offers ample free parking and food service.

Sculpture Society establishes registry

National Sculpture Society, the oldest and largest organization of professional sculptors in the United States announced plans for a projected program of research and development with a view to establishing a sculpture registry.

Richard Frazier, sculptor and chairman of the committee said, "We want to fulfill two inter-related needs long expressed by sculptors, patrons and art historians, as well as galleries and museums: authentication of bronzes to prevent unauthorized copying and fraudulent representation, and standardization of terminology in the production of bronzes to eliminate the confusion which exists in the minds of those who purchase bronzes as to what is an original, a reproduction, a replica, an edition."

The National Sculpture Society's membership is comprised of sculptors, patrons and allied professionals, among whom are several art historians.

Organized in 1893, it numbers among its founding members such well-known sculptors as Augustus St. Gaudens, Daniel Chester French, J.Q.A. Ward; architects such as Stanford White, Richard Morris Hunt, John M. Carrere; and patrons such as Archer Huntington, Whitelaw Reid, Royal Cortissoz.

The Research steering committee is composed of three sculptors: Mr. Frazier, Domenico Facci and Cleo Hartwig; and two art administrators: Mr. Noble and the director of the Grand Central Art Galleries, James Cox. Claire Stein, executive director of the National Sculpture Society, will coordinate the efforts of the committee.

National Sculpture Society has already received expressions of support from the American Association of Museums, the Artists Equity, the National Academy of Design, the Sculptors Guild and the Foundry Guild.

Probably the most difficult task is the collection of data on what has already been done, both here and in other countries. The stages of this effort include information retrieval from sculptors and art institutions, setting-up the boundaries of the project, indicating the physical set-up, investigating computerization, establishing budgets and setting up the registry, possibly with the issuance of a seal of authentication.

Suggestions for procedures, letters indicating methods now in use, or any other communication on the subject may be sent to National Sculpture Society, 15 East 26 Street, New York, N.Y. 10010.

Womanspace has 'Dinner Party'

A bus trip to the controversial art exhibit, The Dinner Party by Judy Chicago, is being sponsored by Womanspace, Inc. at the Brooklyn Museum, Thursday, Jan. 15.

The Dinner Party was described in Art in America magazine as a "...controversial environment...a movable feast of sculpture, needlework, ceramics and painted tile... (which) outlines the history of women from pre-historic time."

The monumental work was done by Chicago and a team of men and women who contributed to the research, creation and mounting of the exhibit.

Reservations will be limited for the round-trip leaving the Lawrenceville Shopping Center at 8:30 a.m.

For information call Cindy Gordon at 609-448-3298.

Womanspace, Inc. is a non-profit organization which operates the Mercer County Women's Center, a shelter for battered women.

Conference on 'Marketing Your Art'

Marketing Your Art, the business aspect in the life of every artist, will be the topic of an all-day seminar on Friday, Jan. 23, at the Paul Robeson Campus Center, 350 High Street, Newark.

Co-sponsored by the Art Department of Rutgers University, the Rutgers Small Business Development Center and the U.S. Small Business Administration, the program is open to all New Jersey visual artists.

"We are offering a unique service to artists," said Professor Judith Brodsky, chair of the Art Department of Rutgers and a painter and sculptor. "Experts in every phase of marketing will come together to conduct workshops and offer a solid day of business training. This kind of information has been widely sought by artists but has not been readily available."

Registration will be limited and may be made by sending a check payable to Rutgers University, c/o Adele Kaplan, Small Business Development Center, Ackerson Hall, 180 University Avenue, Newark, N.J. 07102.

For information or a descriptive brochure, call Professor Brodsky at 201-648-5600 or Ms. Kaplan at 201-648-5950.

INDEX

On the cover: The sculpture of Joan Danziger makes you look twice doesn't it — is this a man or a beast or something altogether different? In fact, it is something altogether different, and for more examples of this fanciful art, see the centerfold feature by Lisa Smith on pages 8 and 9.

Artists flourish behind bars

Dr. Eric B. Chandler, Special Constituency Chairman for the Middlesex County Cultural and Heritage Commission announces the availability of a new publication, Drawings From Within. This 34 page booklet is a sampling of illustrations by inmates involved in a workshop component of the Prison Arts Program, cosponsored by the Middlesex County Cultural and Heritage Commission and the Middlesex County Adult Corrections Department. The project focuses on providing opportunities for new learning experiences through professionally led workshops and scheduled performances by area artists.

Since July, men and women have been participating in weekly art workshops taught by area artist, Michael Donato.

These classes are a means for channeling expression in a positive direction. The effects are demonstrated in this latest project publication available free, by request.

The Prison Arts Program is designed to offer a variety of year-round arts experiences for both adults and juveniles. Coordinating the program is Jennifer K. Landers, Project Director, with the assistance of Richard A. van den Heuvel, Chief of Social Services. As a cooperative effort, additional programming is extended to the County's Juvenile Facilities.

In support of the project is Frank M. Pelly who serves in Middlesex County as both Chairman of Corrections and Penal Institutions, and Freeholder Liaison to the Commission.

Launched in January 1980, a series of theater workshops was taught to adult inmates by Mahmood Karimi. Simultaneously, creative writing workshops were conducted by Dr. Alice Brand for the juveniles, producing two Youth Anthologies, What's on My Mind? and Sharing Feelings. The success of these workshops prompted classes for the adults, and a third anthology, Distance is the Taste, was published as a direct result.

Writing is a particularly effective element in this environment, for although it is an arts process, it helps the inmates gain new insight and interest in this basic skill area. Using various techniques, students are encouraged to use writing as a creative tool for releasing tensions.

The Evening Performance Series was launched in April, continuing monthly for the remainder of the year. These events offer a variety of art forms and include audience participation wherever possible.

Drawings From Within is available in limited supply. For one free copy write to Jennifer Landers, Project Director, Prison Arts Program, Middlesex County Cultural and Heritage Commission, 841 Georges Road, North Brunswick, NJ 08902. Enclose a self-addressed, 40 cent stamped, nine by 12 inch manilla envelope to cover mailing.

Newark Museum explores soft energy and Afro-American art

The Newark Museum, 49 Washington St., will present an Energy Update, a bilingual puppet show for children, and an exhibit entitled The Afro-American Tradition in Decorative Arts.

In relation to the Museum's Soft Energy Expo, consultant physicist Amory B. Lovins will present an Energy Update at the Museum on Friday, Jan. 9, at 4 p.m.

Mr. Lovins is a British Representative of Friends of the Earth, Inc., and active in energy policy in 15 countries. An international ambassador of "soft energy," the physicist speaks seven months each year, traveling in the United States and abroad "cross-pollinating on the energy grapevine," as he calls it. He refers to "trading his sermon" for alternative technology tips or to gain access to influential realms of government and finance.

"Soft energy" describes the use of resources which, unlike petroleum, are renewable, such as the sun, the winds and recycled biomass, or garbage. Soft energy also involves major changes in our uses of energy, with a view to avoiding shortages of gasoline and heating oil.

As a former student of law, linguistics and physics at Harvard and Oxford Universities, Mr. Lovins currently serves as a consultant to many environmental and energy-related bureaus, including the U.S. Energy Research and Development Administration, the U.S. Congress Office of Technology Assessment and the Science Council of Canada.

The "soft energy" advocate has also written numerous articles for professional publications concerned with energy / resource policy and other technical issues in addition to letters on the same topics for The New York Times, Ecologist, New Scientist and Foreign Affairs. In a 1978 article which appeared in New Times Magazine, Mr. Lovins was referred to as "The Whiz Kid Energyologist."

Joining Mr. Lovins for the Friday, Jan. 9 program at the Newark Museum will be his wife and colleague L. Hunter Lovins, who is a lawyer, sociologist, political scientist and forester.

Tours through the Museum's Soft Energy Expo will begin at 3 p.m. preceding Mr. Lovins' presentation. The Expo, a consumer-oriented exhibit organized by energy consultant Jack Greenspan, explains conservation measures that can be adapted by individuals in homes and office buildings. Included in the exhibit is an electric car, a "do-it-yourself" insulation blower, and a hydro-hearth fireplace.

Support for the Soft Energy Expo has been provided by the Victoria Foundation, Inc., the Florence and John Schumann Foundation and the Geraldine R. Dodge Foundation, Inc. Exhibit Designer for the Expo is Joseph Clinton, professor at Kean College of New Jersey.

Seating for the free presentation of Energy Update will be on a first come, first served basis.

Let's Speak Spanish With Leonard and His Friends, a bilingual puppet introduction to both the Spanish and English languages with music, will be presented for children at the Newark Museum in a free performance 1:30 p.m., Saturday, Jan. 10.

Puppeteer Sheila Handler of Edison has developed a new concept in educational entertainment without the use of boring texts and tiresome taped drills. Children will learn both the English and Spanish words for colors, salutations, items of clothing and numbers.

The lion puppet Leonard (or Leonardo Leon, the Ruler of the Forest) will be joined by 14 other colorful hand puppets, most of which are conveniently addressed by the Spanish word that describes them. They include Senor Morsa, the overly emotional walrus; Gatto, the lethargic pussycat and La Bruja, the nasty old witch. Children will also recognize Bert and Ernie, two familiar faces that originated on Sesame Street.

Children's Saturday Programs are supported by the New Jersey State Council on the Arts, through the National Endowment for the Arts. A 12:30 p.m. talk about the live animals in the Junior Museum Mini-Zoo precedes the 1:30 p.m. theatre presentation. Among the animals are ferrets, snakes, rabbits, turtles and birds.

The Afro-American Tradition in Decorative Arts will be the featured exhibit at the Newark Museum during February, in honor of African-American History Month. Special tours of the show, and workshops will be available for school groups from Wednesday, Jan. 21 through March 1.

The Afro-American Tradition in Decorative Arts focuses on the survival of African elements in the craftwork of Black Americans. The exhibit explores the making of baskets, musical instruments, wood sculpture, quilts, pottery, boats, wrought iron, architecture and grave decoration in both Africa and the United States. Artistic expression in these media is illustrated through photographs and objects.

The exhibit originated at the Cleveland Museum and has been seen in St. Louis, Birmingham, Boston and Charleston. The only metropolitan area showing of this important exhibition will be at the Newark Museum, where it is presented in cooperation with the North Jersey Chapter, Links, Inc.

School classes visiting the Museum during February may also choose to visit Art in African Living in the Museum's African Gallery. In addition, special weekend events have been planned throughout African-American History Month, including films, concerts, children's art and dance workshops and live theatre.

There is no charge for Newark School groups except for materials involved in workshops, with minimal fees for Essex County and state-wide groups. Lunchroom facilities are available at the Museum, although meals and beverages are not served. School groups are encouraged to visit before noon, when the Museum is closed to the public. Bus parking is available by prior arrangement in the adjacent Museum Park East lot, on the corner of University and Central Avenues.

The Newark Museum is open daily, noon to 5 p.m. For reservations about the above events, call the Museum at 201-733-8610.

McCarter hosts flurry of shows

McCarter Theatre of Princeton has planned several shows for the next few weeks in January and February.

On Saturday, Jan. 10, the Paper Bag Players will return to the stage at McCarter for two performances of Hot Feet, at 11 a.m. and 2 p.m. It is a show created for children of all ages by this award-winning children's theater troupe.

Eminent Domain by Percy Granger will kick off McCarter's 1981 mainstage season on Jan. 20. Paul Ausen will direct the play, having recently directed Death of a Salesman at the George Street Playhouse. This contemporary drama is set in the midwest in a university town and it explores the emotional landscape of life in academia. Eminent Domain will run from Jan. 20 to Feb. 8.

Several new actors will join the company for this production. MacIntyre Dixon, last seen in Robert Altman's movie Popeye will lead the cast as Holmes Bradford. Betty Miller will portray his wife, Katie, and Thomas Norwold will be seen as Oates Stoddard. Two veterans of McCarter's company from last year, Stephen Stout and Barry Boys, will portray Victor Salt and John Ramsey, respectively.

For the first time in its history as a professional regional company, McCarter Theatre will mount a Stage II production, Putting on The Dog, by Deloss Brown. The show will run from Jan. 20 through Feb. 1.

Stage II is a new alternative kind of theater for both McCarter performers and audiences. It uses only the actors, script, and little or no production budget. "Just so we can get the work on in front of people," according to Robert Lanchester, McCarter's Projects Director and Founder of the Stage II project.

Putting on The Dog is a direct follow-through of last season's "New Playwrights-at-a-McCarter" series. Mr. Lanchester, who will direct this humorous satire, has been working with playwright Deloss Brown on revisions of his adaptation of a Russian novel by Mikhail Bulgakov, A Dog's Heart.

The play will be performed at 185 Nassau Street, Princeton University Campus, in a theater space considerably smaller than McCarter's 1077-seat capacity. Performances will be given every evening at 8 from Jan. 20 to Feb. 1 (no show on Jan. 26, however) and two matinee performances will be given on Jan. 25 and Feb. 1 at 2:30 p.m.

An international trio of mimes known collectively as "Mummenschanz" will return to McCarter Theatre for two performances on Monday and Tuesday, Jan. 26 and 27, at 8 p.m. America's John Murphy, Switzerland's Peter Schelling, and Germany's Claudia Weiss are the three members of this mime-masque theater troupe which recently ended a two-year engagement on Broadway.

Mummenschanz comes from the German words for game ("Mummen") and chance ("schanz"). During Medieval times, players of games of chance frequently wore masks to hide their facial expressions during the play. The artists of Mummenschanz move beyond conventional pantomime to create theatrical expressions based in part on the ancient Swiss theater tradition of "the Masks."

Garbed in fantastic wrappings, they become beings without faces, amphibious animals, caterpillars, and mopsters whose raw animal heads change into human faces through animal limbs (arms become legs, heads become necks, the back becomes the belly, and so on). Playing with gray putty and their mobile bodies, the three members of the troupe recreate the development of human life from the original cell as well as our kinship to the animal form.

On Monday, Feb. 9 through Wednesday, Feb. 11, the Alvin Ailey Dance Theatre will offer two completely different programs at McCarter Theatre with performances each evening at 8. Works to be danced by the company will include Mr. Ailey's latest creation, Phases, which premiered in New York City in early December. The troupe will also perform Night Creature set to the music of Duke Ellington, Suite Otis with music by Otis Redding, and its traditional ballet Revelations, in which Mr. Ailey employs a wide variety of spirituals as the musical score.

For more information on all McCarter Theatre productions and tickets, please call the box office at 609-921-8700.

Anne Frates appears as Mistress Quickly in the MIT-Wellesley Shakespeare Ensemble's production of "Henry IV, Part II" at Murray Dodge Hall, Princeton University campus.

MIT-Wellesley ensemble stages 'Henry IV'

William Shakespeare's Henry IV Part II will be performed by the Shakespeare Ensemble of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and Wellesley on Sunday, Jan. 11, and will be repeated on Monday, Jan. 12. The performances will be held at 7:30 p.m. in Murray-Dodge Hall on the Princeton University campus.

As described by Shakespeare scholar A.L. Rowse, "The two parts of Henry IV are commonly regarded as the apogee of Shakespeare's English history plays; yet they differ from all the others in being almost equally chronicle-plays and comedies."

Although Part II continues the story that was begun in the preceding play, the audience need not see the first part to understand and appreciate Part II. Henry IV contains one of Shakespeare's greatest comic creations, Falstaff.

Two performances are being given this year because of the overflow crowd at the single performance of last year's production by the M.I.T. / Wellesley Ensemble.

Tickets may be purchased at the Murray-Dodge Hall box office on the evening of the performance, or in advance during the afternoons. The box office phone number is 609-452-8181.

Faculty Players present 'Albatross'

The Lawrenceville Faculty Players are in the final days of rehearsal for their production of Nobody Loves An Albatross, a 1963 Broadway comedy hit by Ronald Alexander, to be presented 8 p.m., Friday and Saturday, Jan. 9 and 10, in the Kirby Arts Center of The Lawrenceville School.

Newsweek termed it "an engaging splurge of lunacy... a fracturing farce." The New Republic called it "an underground play... with all the earmarks of a formula comedy that undermines each and every convention of the genre... a deadly accurate, hilariously funny sociology of the entertainment industry."

Fred Gerstell, a veteran of two of the group's earlier productions, stars in the role created on Broadway by Robert Preston, as a denizen of Hollywood's television hierarchy who is a plagiarist, liar, lecher, and all-round cad, but also a rather engaging fellow.

Albatross will be the sixth production of the Faculty Players. Their previous offerings were Don Juan in Hell, The Importance of Being Earnest, Born Yesterday, My Three Angels, and The Play's The Thing. Their avowed purpose, according to their director, Jim Blake, is "simply to amuse."

Tickets may be purchased in advance at the Jigger Shop, Lawrenceville, or at the box office on performance nights.

'P.S., Your Cat is Dead' opens in Edison

The recent Broadway hit P.S., Your Cat Is Dead will open at the Edison Valley Playhouse, Oak Tree Road, Edison, on Friday evening, Jan. 9, at 8:30 p.m. The comedy will continue every Friday and Saturday evening at 8:30 and Sunday evenings at 7:30 through Feb. 8.

James Kirkwood wrote the play which deals with people caught up in the difficulties of trying to survive daily life in New York City. Lou J. Stalsworth of New Brunswick will direct and Donald Bumgardner, also of New Brunswick, will play the leading role of a harried New Yorker who catches a burglar in the act of robbing his apartment. John Hickson, Jr. of Somerville will play the part of the thief, while Sue Avent of Piscataway and Don Baldwin

Philadelphia Drama Guild has new home

The Philadelphia Drama Guild will open Brian Friel's fanciful comedy-drama Philadelphia, Here I Come! on Friday, Jan. 9 at 7 p.m. in its new home at the Zellerbach Theatre of the Annenberg Center, 3680 Walnut Street, Philadelphia. The third production of Philadelphia's professional resident theater company, it will run through Jan. 25.

Philadelphia, Here I Come! is the story of young Gareth O'Donnell, who is about to leave his tiny village in County Donegal, Ireland, where he has spent all of his 25 years living with his father in sparse and uncomfortable quarters behind the general store they run, to emigrate to America.

The main focus of the play is Gar's relationship with his father, a taciturn man who keeps his emotions tightly in check.

But beneath its calm surface, the relationship is one of unspoken hopes, hostilities, and emotions. To present both these levels on stage, author Friel splits the character of Gar into two roles — the "Public Gar" as he appears to his father and friends, and the "Private Gar," his alter ego, visible only to the audience.

The production will be directed by John Going, who has directed at many leading resident theaters, including the Pittsburgh Public, the Hartford Stage Company, Syracuse Stage and the Indiana Repertory Theatre. This past summer Mr. Going directed Sada Thompson, of television's Family, in a tour of Children, a new play by A.R. Gurney.

Wiggle Club's 'Sidekicks' for kids

As part of its Wiggle Club series for pre-schoolers and kindergarten children, the Pushcart Players will present its new production of Sidekicks in conjunction with the Battleground Arts Center. The performance will be held on Monday, Jan. 12, at 12:45 p.m. at Congregation Agudath Achim, Broad and Stokes Streets, Freehold.

The show is a series of episodes, done partly in mime and underscored by classical music selections, which illustrate some of the joys and hardships that a friendship endures. All emotions are translated into catchy, crisp songs in a manner suitable for young children.

Sculptor brings magic to town

Joan Danziger creates a fantasy

"Reba-The Rhino Queen"

By LISA E. SMITH

If you didn't find "Magic Sam," "Thorndyke the Great," "Lady Melinda" or "Gertrude Overnickel" under your Christmas tree, there's still hope. Joan Danziger is coming to town — to live — bringing magical creations for adults, as well as kids.

What's a "Magic Sam" or a "Lady Melinda?" They are fantasy sculptures which Danziger fashions out of wire, glue-covered fabric, celluclay, paint and a colorful imagination.

"Magic Sam," for instance, is a green frog-headed human who towers almost six feet high. He sits upon a throne with a winged-antler back and lion feet, partially decorated in hot pink. "Lady Melinda," measuring only three feet tall, is a rhino-headed musician who plays an eight-string, purple cello with an alligator head.

The whimsical creatures which command prices of $3500 or more, reside in lawyers' offices, hotel lobbies, Park Avenue apartments and museums around the country. One two-headed eagle chair, "Ethelred's Throne," found its way into the Executive Office Building, next door to the White House.

Most recently her work was exhibited at the Terry Dintenfass Gallery in New York City, where several pieces remain for viewing.

The former Smithsonian art instructor and her sculptures have been featured in newspapers from The Washington Star to The Los Angeles Examiner, and in magazines from The National Geographic to Esquire. Clippings from exhibits like "Fun and Fantasy," "Gems of Imagination," and "The Masks as Metaphor" fill her scrapbook.

Writes one newspaper reviewer, "far from being surrealistic, her sculptures conjure an earlier period of mankind when human life was perceived as more fluid, interrelated with other life forms and magic."

Danziger prefers designing female figures because of "their beautiful shapes and curves," masking them with an assortment of animal faces — giselles, zebras, rhinos or giraffes.

More recent work offers a variation of her single image theme. Unlike "Magic Sam" or "Lady Melinda," "The Procession" consists of numerous figures. A group of 20 penguins stretching six feet in length, bear an eagle-headed woman upon their heads. Still another piece, "The Prophets," which is a furniture sculpture of two hand-clasping women, offers utilitarian pleasures as well as entertainment.

"It's my own personal imagery, open for representation," says the 43-year-old woman.

"It takes a lot of intensity and thought to look at one of the pieces. First you see the content, then you get more involved with the form, the color and other dimensions."

"The Prophets."

world from scratch

THE FORMER Washington D.C. resident has long been fascinated with the integration of human and animal figures. "There's an old legend that behind every animal," says Danziger, "is a person."

People who view the artist's work do not always immediately understand the concept. Instead of feeling intrigued, they often feel threatened by the human and animal association.

"There's an instinctive fear that comes out when I use certain kinds of animals like birds of prey," she says. "It's a primeval fear that even contemporary, sophisticated people experience. To them, it's a very frightening thing."

"My work confronts people. It makes them think about themselves. It makes them think about what is and isn't real."

Danziger enjoys communicating subtle messages to audiences, but she laments that too often extensive analysis spoils the magic of her work.

Fourteen years ago, Danziger began experimenting with three-dimensional fantasy characters. She had tired of her work as an abstract painter; she wanted to bring more life to her creations.

Now she observes, her masked people are sometimes too real. "There have been times when I have come into the house around dusk, and it's beginning to get dark. They look alive. They feel like spirits."

Once she settles in Princeton, she anticipates trying outdoor sculptures with concrete or metal when she works at the Johnson Atelier Technical Institute of Sculpture.

This past month she conducted a three-day workshop in papier mache at the Princeton Art Association. Later in the spring, she hopes to expand her teaching, by offering several more courses there.

But right now, moving is foremost in her mind. Her husband Martin's recent appointment as a New Jersey State Casino Commissioner has prompted a move to this area from Washington. Temporarily, the couple is residing in a Trenton apartment until they find "just the right house" in Princeton.

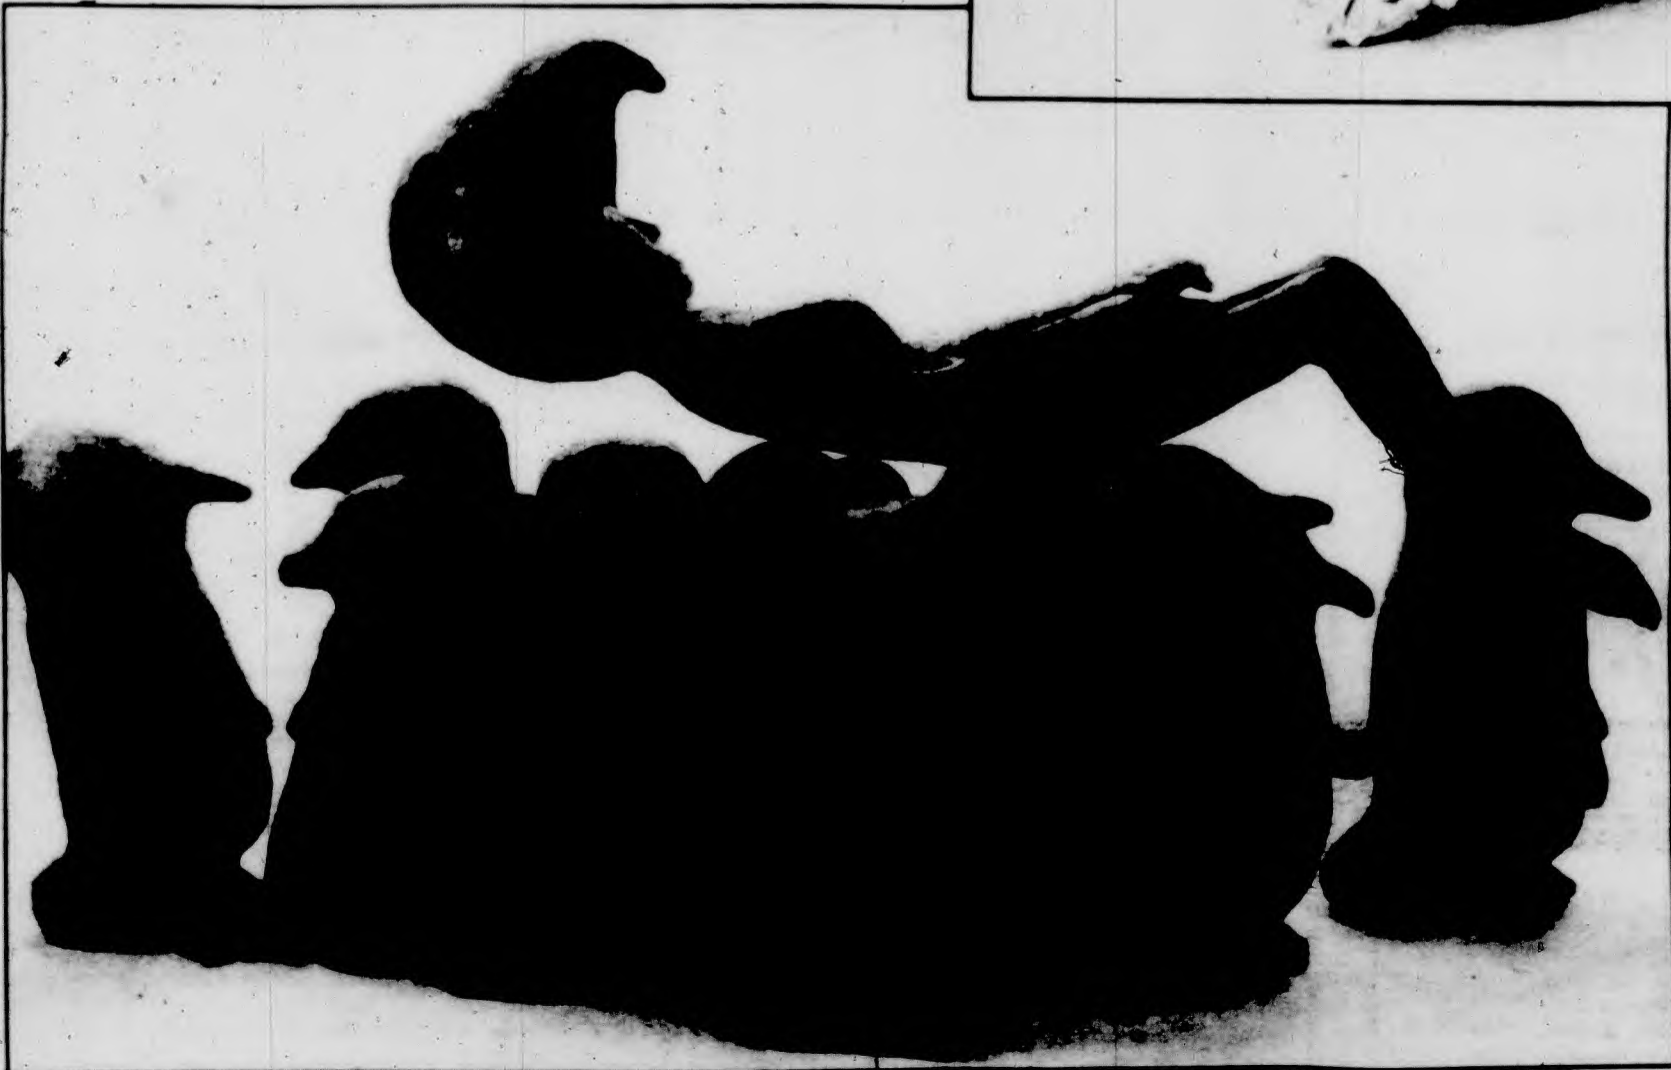

When you are an artist like Danziger, you don't shop for a new home in the conventional manner, looking for a four-bedroom, large-size living room house with lots of closets. You look for the perfect place for a studio.

For Danziger, an airy place with lots of room, perhaps a large family room on the first floor, is a must. She learned her lesson once before, after completing an enormous work on the third floor of her Washington home. It was too large to fit through the door or lower through a window. So "Tangiers Starky at the Piano," suffered a leg amputation.

With dozens of ideas for new people creatures in mind, Danziger is anxious to find that new home, get settled and create a new fantasyland in Princeton's backyard.

Down-home ribs can't be beat

By DIANNE WILLIAMS

Lately I have been feeling a little guilty about not reviewing more American restaurants. I worry when someone like John Hess, former food critic for the New York Times, charges that restaurant reviewers have turned their backs on our distinctive food heritage. I worry, but not nearly enough to haul myself over to the nearest chop house. There is no rapture for me in a steak and a salad bar. Besides, if miles of crammed parking lots are any indication, these kind of restaurants have found a wide audience without any help from the press.

Even so, it is nice to be in the mainstream every once in a while. Rib-It, a wonderful dining spot in the Society Hill section of Philadelphia, is definitely in the mainstream. The specialty of the house is barbecued ribs. (What could be more American?) tender, meaty ribs deliciously cooked in a smoky, spicy barbecue sauce; not just a few, huge boned specimens, but piles of baby back ribs — as good as any I have had in the South with the exception of a tiny diner in Key Largo. On Monday nights, Rib-It offers all you can eat of them for $8.95, only one dollar more than the regular price. Refills are as large as the initial serving.

Steak fries and cole slaw are served with the entree but they are rather ordinary. You really should try the onion ring loaf, even if it looks like a lot of food. Mild sweet onions, batter fried, are shaped into a loaf without becoming gummy. Sure, they are a little oily — and fattening — but if you like fried onion rings, these are hard to beat. One order will generously serve four very hungry people.

A large bowl of barbecued chicken wings is the only appetizer on the menu; perfect to munch on if you have to wait at the bar for a table.

The rest of the menu is limited also. There are three or four other entrees, but since no one at our table could be persuaded to try them, I have no idea how the steak, chicken and pork chops are. Dessert is not offered at all.

The restaurant is dimly lit by gas light sconces and this kind of place has been copied so often, it takes a while to notice that the walls are real brick, the ceiling is real tin and, in fact, there is not one false note in the decor. Contrary to first impressions, Rib-It is not very large. A front bar takes up about one third of the restaurant's space. There is live entertainment here after 8 p.m.

The crowd is casual and loud. There are all kinds of people — fat, skinny, old, young — about the only thing they have in common is a vigorous appetite. The tables are placed very close together and set with paper placé mats which double as menus.

DEPENDING ON how hungry you are, the service is slow, or medium slow, or pleasantly unhurried. If you are ravenous, I would advise placing your dinner order at the same time that your bar order is taken.

The wine list is short and not very tempting. I recommend a large, frosty mug of draught beer, unless a Chocolate Coyote or a Rib-It Banger strikes your fancy.

There is a $3 minimum per person and no children's menu. If you come with the kids be prepared to order full portions. As far as price is concerned, the food is well worth the cost. An average dinner for two, with drinks and tip included, will probably run in the $25 - $30.00 price range.

Beyond the Society Hill apartment complex, New Market Square is a vast tinker toy of shops that offers unlimited ways to spend any gift money that may have accumulated over the holidays. In a highly innovative mixture of old and new architecture, every little doodad that has ever been thought of finds its way here.

Crafts from all over the globe, shell shops, antiques, boutiques, bath shops, book stores — there is even a shop that sells nothing but hearts; hearts on cups, saucers and canisters, heart pill boxes, heart pillows — enough hearts to meet Valentine's Day in fine style. And after shopping, have a night cap at the Rusty Scupper, perhaps the most stunning building in the whole complex.

Smothers Brothers ready to risk TV again

By JEFF WEINGRAD

The Smothers Brothers — the brash boys of the '60s — about to wade into the mainstream of series TV? The answer, says Dick Smothers, the one Mom always liked best, is yes, and no.

Yes, he and brother Tom have six hours of Fitz and Bones ready for NBC to start airing later this month, and a contract that commits them to stick with it if the Nielsen numbers tell the network to put the show into a regular slot. But no way, says the muscchioed brother Smothers, does he see the show — in which the pair plays a roving news team — as the usual network offering of cotton candy for the mind.

"It's not a sit-com in any manner," Dick Smothers told me recently, a couple of days before shooting was to begin on the initial two-hour episode. "Tommy calls it a 'dramedy.' There'll be some drama and some comedy. It'll have real plots and no farcical situations."

The end result, said Smothers, should be reminiscent, at least in tone, of shows like Maverick, and The Avengers, and of more recent vintage, Lou Grant.

"If we could have a show like that (Lou Grant), with about 30 per cent more humor, I'd like that," said Smothers. "I just don't want a piece of fluff. I hope the shows have meaningful plots. I don't want to go overboard and be mushy, but I do want to deal with topics that are current and believable... and make it funny."

The Smothers Brothers have been known before to mix current topics and funny business, a fact attested to by their memorable losing battle with CBS' standards and practices department. Of course that was 1969, an era of war and conflict in society that is already, to many, ancient history.

"Now the networks want us to be more controversial, do anything we want," said Smothers, a short ironic chuckle punctuating his remarks. "That actually makes us afraid, the controversial now being in fashion. But it's the times that make the issues, and today they're hard to define. The issues are too personal now. They were bigger then, more generic and easier to defend. But it's hard to compare, they're different eras."

Along with the eras, the Smothers Brothers have gone through myriad changes too since they came into the entertainment scene almost two decades ago — Dick with his bass, Tom with his guitar and the two of them tickling the funny bone of the until-then-on-so-serious world of folk music. With Tom playing the role of the dullard, they hit it big on records in the early '60s, and then graduated to TV in 1965. (This one was definitely a sit-com, with Tom playing an angel.) That first show lasted one session.

Their second show, the pointedly topical variety hour, lasted only two seasons before reaching its much-publicized demise, but it turned them into cult figures and brought them to the height of their popularity. They twice flirted with network TV since then, but the totally non-musical Fitz and Bones is their first stab at regular TV work in the past five years.

"We retired the SBA (Smothers Brothers Act), Christmas, 1976, and we've stuck by our guns on that," Smothers explained. "The red jackets, the folk songs, the humor. We were repeating ourselves and that's a place we didn't want to be. Not that we lost respect for the Smothers Brothers, but there were no new ideas. We were making good money, but where's the challenge? So we took a big risk in dropping the act, and took a shot at acting."

Tom and Dick Smothers.

Their most noted success during this last period was playing together — but not as brothers — in the musical comedy, I Love My Wife. After glowing reviews on Broadway they took the play on the road, and continued to draw praise for their work. He feels it was their success with the musical that brought NBC knocking on their door.

"It was a terrible risk, going to Broadway, but we held our own," said Smothers. "We took that chance, and it built toward this, and now we're taking another chance."

And if this new effort runs into the ratings-or-else ax that the networks wield so wildly these days?

"I never think of failure," he responded quickly. "My whole life's been risks. There must be a star following me to make my life a little bent. I'd rather tend to the complications than take the boredom. And realistically, if it doesn't make it, there will be something else. There are too many chapters in life to say this is it."

Good Night Boys and Girls: Good night, Mickey. NBC, the network that recently gave us Number 96 and will soon unveil Harper Valley PTA, has determined that the ratings for Disney's Wonderful World are no longer worth keeping the show on the schedule and will let it die at the end of this season. So it is that after 27 years, TV's longest-running prime-time series will join the history books. (Not that the Disney studio is closing shop though. In fact, word is that it will probably turn around and throw itself into television production on an even larger scale than now, with deals with all three networks in the works for weekly comedy and drama series.)

The show, which has gone by a few names since it premiered Oct. 27, 1954 — Disneyland, Walt Disney Presents, Walt Disney's Wonderful World of Color, The Wonderful World of Disney — was one of ABC's first real hits. All three networks wanted the series — the first television effort by any of the big-time Hollywood studios — but Disney chose weak sister ABC because it offered him the best deal regarding financing for his much-dreamed-about amusement park near Los Angeles. ABC paid Walt Disney the then astronomical sum of $500,000 for the series, plus $50,000 an episode. Disney had the money for Disneyland. ABC had a hit, though not right away.

The show did all right for the first few episodes, but it instantly earned itself a spot in the TV hall of fame with a three-part series it began airing Dec. 15, 1954. Davy Crockett, brought to life by Fess Parker, took this nation by storm, and by the time the fabled frontiersman died in the Alamo, Feb. 23, 1955, there wasn't a kid in America running around without a coonskin cap on his head. (Those of you with cable can re-live it all this month too — HBO is repeating the three episodes a bunch of times over the next few weeks.)

The series moved to NBC in 1961. Walt

Disney died in December, 1966. Sixty Minutes began in 1968. In 1975 it moved to Sunday night opposite Disney. NBC, the network that gave us Waverly Wonders and Speak Up America, is not happy about the imbalance of ratings towards CBS on Sunday nights. Come the end of the 1980-81 season, it's goodby Mickey.

*****

MORE PEACOCK: NBC, struggling in the ratings department — so what else is new? — has trimmed a number of shows from its schedule and will be throwing in a few new ones over the coming weeks to fill the gaps. Going off is Number 96 — the skin-iest show ever seen on network TV — Games People Play, Steve Allen Show, and Marie. Coming on are Flamingo Road (life in a seamy Southern town), Hill Street Blues a sort of Lou Grant for cops, from the same folks at MTM), Harper Valley PTA (from the hit song, starring Barbara Eden, George Gobel and Fannie Flagg), Nero Wolfe (detective, portrayed by William Conrad), Walking Tall (big bad sheriff), The Gangster Chronicles (Mafia, 101-102) and Sanford (a la Redd Foxx). You'll all be pleased to know too that an "all-new" Lobo (tommy), BJ and the Bear and Buck Rogers all return to the schedule shortly also.

*****

RR IN FOCUS: So what if you weren't invited to the inauguration — starting Monday (12), Ch. 9 is filling the air waves with Ronald Reagan movies. All week at 4 p.m. the station will unroll the President as actor, and Saturday at one and three in the afternoon too.

*****

AROUND THE DIAL: NBC has in production now a two-hour Munsters tele-flick. Just like the old favorite, which ran on CBS from 1964 to 1966, and in syndication all over since then, this remake will star Fred Dwyne, Yvonne DeCarlo and Al Lewis. After a slew of unflattering stories suddenly appeared about the show, virtually every NBC executive this side of Hollywood came forward to say that Saturday Night Live was still alive, and that the newly refurbished edition will be given until at least the end of this season before any decisions will be made about it.

Like so many other TV stars, Larry Wilcox, who plays Jon on CHiPs, has his own production company, and he just announced that its first effort will be a movie about Dorothy Stratten, the Playboy Playmate of the Year who was killed by her husband a few months back... J.R. sings? Right y'are. Friday (16) night, when he hosts NBC's Midnight Special. He, of course, is Larry Hagman... The Top selling videocassette on the market these days is The Blues Brothers. Alien is number two... Johnny Carson has again been named host of the Academy Awards. It'll be the third time in a row for the budding Bob Hope. Show airs March 30, 1981, on ABC... ABC's weekly bowling show starts up its 20th season this Saturday (10), at 2:30. As he has since the start, Chris Schenkel will report the action.

*****

COMING UP: Tonight (7), if you have trouble sleeping, you'll find Hud (2-10)

'Nine to Five' isn't all work

By THOMAS SIMONET

Old-pro office administrator Violet Newstead (Lily Tomlin) handles the hold button on incoming telephone calls faster than some people can type, and she solves problems before the waiting calls can blink.

Newcomer Judy Bernly (Jane Fonda), after one slipup with a collating Xerox machine that generates a blizzard, becomes just as efficient with office technology.

Doralee Rhodes (Dolly Parton) has the loyalty and honesty that would make any employer love her, and he does, though not for those qualities.

The women represent the unprized employees in every office who know what's going on, who don't pass the buck and who perform like demons. They are the people who make the organization run. Naturally, Violet, Judy and Doralee are not appreciated by Consolidated, Inc. They are secretaries.

'Nine to Five' admirably takes up the cause of these neglected workers. The movies seldom portray occupations in any detail. Detectives, soldiers, athletes and performers may be shown working most of the time they are on the screen. But people in most other jobs work only briefly in the movies — just enough to round out their characters.

Many of the greatest dramas in life — birth, marriage and death — occur outside the work day. But there is drama on the job. Listening to any group of co-workers talking shop will convince you that there is drama in the warehouse, the boutique, the garage and the office.

More and more the office. Last year, "clerk" became the nation's most common occupation (replacing laborer, which years ago replaced farmer). The Bureau of Labor Statistics counts more than 17 million clerical workers, three-fourths of them women.

Many of them are underpaid, most of them are underappreciated, and some of them are demeaned by exploitative bosses. Violet Newstead watches her boss take credit for the good work she does between running errands for him. Then he promotes over her a young male whom she trained.

NINE TO FIVE takes us inside a swank office for a humorous look at the slaves who are chained to correcting typewriters, dictation transcribers, word processors and high-speed copiers. (Today's office takes secretaries who are half engineers.) The movie sets up a delightful villain, Franklin Hart Jr. (Dabney Coleman), "a sexist, egotistical, lying, hypocritical, bigot," and then it has the women turn the tables.

Judy, Doralee and Violet are mad as hell and they fantasize how they're not going to take it anymore. Judy would hunt down Hart like a jungle animal. Doralee envisions a wild-west showdown. Violet imagines zapping him sweetly, fairy-tale style. The surreal capers in these fantasies highlight the film.

Following the adage that warns you should be careful what you wish for, their death wishes seem to come true. This leads to I Love Lucy-type misunderstandings and complications. In the sitcom that ensues we see the women in the office only as they are enacting a package of needed reforms. But nobody works much in this part of the film.

In the comedy Coleman is outstanding, especially when the women have him where they want him. Tomlin shines, Fonda shows no special gift for comedy and Parton proves she should stay with singing.

Parton seems constantly to be trying not to overact, not to show too much emotion. She resembles a teacher trying to scold a misbehaving student sweetly because parents are visiting the classroom. In one scene this works perfectly; she has just discovered an unfamiliar corpse in the car trunk, and she queries her cohorts about it in a beautifully forced deadpan. Many other times the deadpan is inappropriate.

Though it has something for everyone, the movie might not satisfy anyone. Comedy conflicts with the message. The funny twists of the plot make the serious points too easy to forget, and preaching undercuts the laughs.

The movie enters the nitty-gritty workplace bravely enough but deserts for the sure, high ground of situation comedy just when things promise to get rough.

Work is too central in our lives to get short shrift in the movies. William Faulkner wrote: "You can't eat for eight hours a day nor drink for eight hours a day nor make love for eight hours a day — all you can do for eight hours is work. Which is the reason why man makes himself and everybody else so miserable and unhappy."

Work can also bring great joy. Whatever it is, it is not lack of drama that keeps working out of the movies.

a.m., Ch. 7) far more entertaining than counting sheep. Paul Newman and Jackie Gleason star in the pool-hall drama ... Thursday afternoon, to mark what would have been Elvis' 48th birthday, Ch. 9 will air two of his old movies, Frankie and Johnny and Change of Habit, which co-stars Mary Tyler Moore. At 8, same night, same station, you can see The King's first film ever, Love Me Tender. Over on Ch. 13, same night, Richard Harris and the late Rachel Roberts star in the 1965 drama, This Sporting Life. Friday (9) night, at 1 a.m., again for the insomniacs, Ch. 5 brings out the oldest repeat of them all, the 1927 version of The Jazz Singer. This one starred Al Jolson in the Neil Diamond role (Oh Mammie, would Jolson have loved that billing). Of course this Jazz Singer is the original — it happens to be merely the first talkie, ever. A little earlier Friday night, at 10:30, Ch. 13 runs a profile of Woody Allen ... Monday (12) night, ABC starts up Dynasty, its answer to Dallas. It has a cast of thousands, or at least 10, which the network is hoping we'll all become dizzyingly familiar with very quickly. Same night, Ch. 13's Great Performances looks at dance, focusing in on duets by Mikhail Baryshnikov and Natalia Makarova, and Heather Watts and Ib Anderson. Later that night, also on 13, stage Grande Dame Eva LeGallienne is Dick Cavett's guest ... Tuesday afternoon, Ch. 4 repeats animated musical of Treasure Island. Tuesday night, Ch. 13's Healthline series takes a close look at coronary bypass surgery.

Diana Dors is an underworld queen in PBS-TV's "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde".

COMING ATTRACTIONS

Twentieth Century-Fox will produce "All Fall Down." The film is based on a true story of waterfront crime and violence.

Twentieth Century-Fox will release "The Shattered Silence," a drama which tells the true story of a famous Israeli spy during the Six-Day War.

Pat O'Brien, James Cagney and Norman Mailer will have starring roles in Dino De Laurentis' production of "Ragtime." The film is based on E. L. Doctorow's novel about American life at the turn of the century.

John Belushi and Blair Brown will star in Universal's "Continental Divide." The modern romantic comedy is about an urban muckraking columnist who falls in love with a spirited lady ornithologist.

Orson Welles will have a major role in "Butterfly," the screen version of James M. Cain's tale of sexual intrigue. Welles will portray a small-town judge who must make a Solomon-like decision in a complex case of criminal sex.

Roger Corman will produce a sequel to his production of "Battle Beyond the Stars."

Bo Svenson and Jimmy McNichol will star in "Thrilled to Death," the maiden production effort of Royal American Pictures. The film is a contemporary suspense drama.

CORRECTION

In the issue of Dec. 10, the photograph accompanying the Duck Soup column — it pictured the Three Stooges — was misidentified. The man on the far left was identified as Curley Howard. Mr. Howard was in fact the first "Curley" with the Stooges, but the man photographed in that role was Curley Joe Derito, who actually was the fourth and last "Curley." The second and third "Curleys" were: Shemp Howard — Curley Howard's brother — and Joe Besser.

Rex Jackson of Lawrenceville, who is vice president for development at Educational Testing Service, can also be referred to as a bridge aficionado. He frequently wins at local games with his regular partner, Art Benson, of Princeton. However, Rex recently participated and won first overall in a Flight B Swiss Team event at the New York Winter Regional, playing with his occasional partner, Robert Rosener of the Morristown area.

The above hand is one that helped their team accomplish this overall win. With Rex as South, the bidding went as shown. Rex decided to try for the grand slam in hearts when the Blackwood sequence disclosed that they held all the aces and kings. It is always easier to make a suit contract at any slam level as against the often preferred no-trump. This holds true particularly in a team competition where the 10 extra points of the no-trump contract do not count in the scoring.

Rex's experience and intuition proved him to be correct. He won the opening spade lead in his hand and followed with two rounds of trump from his hand. When East dropped the heart 10 under the second heart lead, Rex hoped that East was now out of trump as well as spades, which Rex surmised from the bidding. A spade to the king proved him correct on both counts. He then ruffed a spade, played a diamond to the ace, ruffed dummy's last spade with his remaining trump, played a club to the king and claimed his grand slam; but not before he pulled West's last trump.

At the other table the opponents, holding the same cards, bid only to six no-trump. However, here West, Rex's and Bob's teammate, decided to lead a low heart which proved to be the opponent's undoing since now they could only take eleven tricks. No matter what they tried they were unable to come up with the twelfth.

Congratulations, Rex, on your big win. Also, congratulations are in order for Zevah Pyne and Art Benson, both of Princeton, who won a Section Top in the Flight B Open Pairs at the same tournament.
